Military Aid Bill Killed

Senate Move to End War Nullified

WASHINGTON (AP) — After voting for the first time to force U.S. withdrawal from Indochina, the Senate has killed the military-foreign-aid bill to which the pullout provision was attached.

In the last of 10 votes that stretched into late Monday night, the $1.785-billion aid authorization was defeated 48 to 42.

By a 50-45 margin, senators voted to cut off funds for U.S. combat operations in Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia in four months, provided American war prisoners were released. The aid bill was the first step in continuing for this fiscal year the U.S. military-aid program for friendly nations. But the Senate vote does not necessarily mean the program is dead.

The House has yet to act on a military-aid authorization; it could send the Senate another version to consider. Or the Senate Foreign Relations Committee could report another aid bill for Senate consideration.

Late last year the Senate defeated the economic-foreign-aid measure for fiscal 1972, only to see it revived in an eleventh-hour compromise with the House.

Backers of the end-of-war amendment have vowed to renew the fight. Their next effort will be to attach the amendment to the Defense Department procurement bill now being debated.

In past months the Senate has gone on record several times against continuation of the war, but never has either house voted to cut off money for the fighting.

The aid bill was defeated by an unusual coalition of conservatives and liberals. Twenty-eight Democrats and 14 Republicans voted for the measure; 19 Democrats and 29 Republicans opposed it.

Left with nothing for the moment, Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., saw the voting as a gesture.

"The impact was that the Senate voted for it," Fulbright told newsmen. "Do you think anybody thought it (the cutoff) would get by the House, or the White House? For whatever it is worth, the Senate has expressed its view."

Fulbright, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield and several others voted for the cutoff, but against the bill. One of these, Sen. Marlow Cook, R-Ky., said, "I've traditionally been an opponent of foreign aid. I don't believe in spending that kind of money."

Republican Leader Hugh Scott had predicted a presidential veto for the bill if it contained the pullout amendment.

After a series of votes on the end-of-war amendments the result was to cut off money for all U.S. combat operations in Vietnam, Laos, and Cambodia—but not Thailand—within four months, if Hanoi returned its American prisoners.

Originally, the bill contained a section by Mansfield which would have withdrawn all troops from Vietnam by Aug. 31, and all forces from Indochina once a cease-fire and a prisoner exchange were agreed to by Hanoi.

The Senate replaced the Mansfield provision with one proposed by Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., in turn, Cooper's was amended by Sen. Edward Brooke, R-Mass.

Cooper's amendment would simply have cut off all combat money in the three countries within four months.

Brooke's amendment, containing the prisoner proviso, was approved 62 to 33. With this in the package, Cooper's amendment carried 50 to 45.

Waldheim Warned on Dikes

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States has sharply warned U. N. Secretary General Kurt Waldheim against spreading reports of U. S. bombings of dikes in North Vietnam.

Waldheim, while saying he could not verify the reports, replied that he thought "it was his duty to speak out on the devastating consequences which might result" from either intentional or unintentional bombing of the flood control system along the Red River in North Vietnam.

A storm between the United States and Waldheim blew up Monday after the secretary-general told a news conference he had "private unofficial" reports via Hanoi of the bombing of the dikes. He appealed to the United States to stop.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers protested in Washington and sent Ambassador George Bush to put the U.S. position personally to Waldheim.

After his one-hour meeting with Waldheim, Bush told reporters he was convinced the secretary-general did not want to give credibility to what Bush called a massive North Vietnamese propaganda campaign.

Waldheim told the news conference:

"Through private unofficial channels... we were informed that the dikes are being bombed, and we were informed also that even in cases where the dikes are not directly bombed, the nearby bombing causes cracking of the dams and that in this way the result is the same as if the dikes were bombed directly."

The secretary-general said he did not know whether the bombing was intentional, and he admitted, "This is Hanoi in a carefully planned campaign by the North Vietnamese and their supporters to give worldwide circulation to this falsehood."

After his conference with Waldheim, Bush told newsmen the secretary-general meant to say that if the dikes were being bombed, "it ought to stop."

The U.S. government has repeatedly denied that its planes are intentionally attacking the flood control system and contended that any damage done to the dikes results from attacks on military targets near them or from an occasional accident. But French and Swedish journalists have reported in speaking bombed dikes in areas where no military installations were in sight.

Conflicting Quang Tri Reports

SAIGON (UPI)—The Saigon command said today government paratroopers rushed unopposed into the stone-walled Quang Tri Citadel, recapturing the provincial capital held by the Communists for 86 days and sending North Vietnamese troops fleeing to safety toward the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

However, field reports said the announcement was premature and there was still heavy fighting going on inside the city.

"The house-to-house fighting in Quang Tri continued today as in the past 12 days," one officer said.

Meanwhile, the U. S. Command announced a phaseout today of the last American combat forces in the Saigon region as part of a cut of more than 3,000 men.

The command announced Monday that U.S. troop strength in South Vietnam was reduced by another 700 men last week to 46,500.

Only one U.S. infantry battalion remains in Vietnam, a remnant of the 196th Brigade which was deactivated last month. This battalion is in the Da Nang area.

President Nixon has ordered U.S. troop strength in Vietnam cut to 39,000 men by Sept. 1. But meanwhile about 100,000 U.S. servicemen are fighting the war from bases in Thailand and Guam and from ships of the 7th Fleet off the coast of Vietnam.

Another indication the Communists were not ready to give up was a new Communist artillery attack on the ancient imperial capital of Hue, 35 miles south of Quang Tri. Five civilians were wounded in the barrage.

Some officials have predicted the Communists will try to outflank the government column moving toward Quang Tri and launch a major attack on Hue, South Vietnam's third largest city, located 400 miles north of Saigon.

McGovern says President's policy of seeking release of U.S. prisoners by bombing North Vietnam was "the height of folly." Story on Page 22.

The Communists were expected to put up a major fight for Quang Tri, the only South Vietnamese provincial capital ever controlled by the North Vietnamese. They overran the city and the province on May 1, one month after the start of the current offensive.

South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu launched the counterattack against Communist forces in Quang Tri on June 28, sending 20,000 government troops north from Hue with orders to recapture the area by Sept. 19.

The Citadel, a 500-yard square stone structure dating back to the 19th century, was the core of Communist resistance in Quang Tri. North Vietnamese troops were well dug in inside the structure, depending on the thick walls and an elaborate bunker system to protect them from allied artillery and air power as well as a ground attack.

The Saigon command said elements of the 2,000-man paratrooper force ordered to recapture the structure got inside the walls through a hole blown by a laser-guided bomb from a U. S. fighter-bomber.

"We're in the Citadel and we're going to clear up every house and every hole," a paratrooper officer told a UPI correspondent at a command post just south of Quang Tri. "Our airborne entered the Citadel at Quang Tri at 10:20 today (10:20 p.m. EDT Monday) and we now control the city of Quang Tri," said Lt. Col. Le Trung Hien, the official spokesman for the Saigon command.

The command said the North Vietnamese defenders fled to the west and the northwest along an escape route purposely left open by government troops. However, other sources in Saigon and from the northern front said the paratroopers met heavy Communist fire when they tried to rush the Citadel. Fire power from U.S. strategic and tactical bombers and 13 Navy cruisers and destroyers ringed Quang Tri City in support of today's operation. U.S. command spokesmen said, "A spokesman said 39 B52s dumped close to 1,000 tons of explosives four to 17 miles from the center of the province capital."

Other U.S. warplanes bombed North Vietnam 260 times Monday, spokesmen said. One of the planes, an F4 Phantom jet fighter-bomber, was downed by a Communist MIG21 fighter 24 miles southeast of the major port city of Haiphong, the command said. The two crew members were rescued. It was the 64th U.S. plane downed over North Vietnam.

In the most significant strike of the day over the North, a laser-guided bomb from an Air Force Phantom jet fighter-bomber dropped one span of the Vu Chua railroad bridge 36 miles from Hanoi.

The command in a delayed report announced the loss of another plane last Sunday 22 miles southwest of Haiphong to Communist anti-aircraft. The pilot of the Navy A7 Corsair jet is listed as missing.

Controversy Ends: City to Buy Building

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON

Eviction notices on the last three tenants at 351-353 Broadway have been served. The Freeman learned today, apparently clearing the way for city acquisition of the property for a parking lot.

The building, located between Staples Street and Brewster Street on one of the busiest sections of Broadway, has been the subject of controversy for more than a year with its owner, Herbert Sussin, in and out of court for alleged building code violations. "It's up to Sussin if he wants to sell the property," Alderman Donald E. Quick (D-Sixth Ward), chairman of a special Common Council committee on Central Broadway, said. "We can't touch it until he gets the tenants out."

The Freeman learned that Sussin has given his tenants until this Friday to vacate the premises. Plans call for the acquisition of the property, demolition, and the construction of a parking lot for up to 40 cars.

Negotiations between the city and Sussin have been underway for at least the last six months. Originally, Sussin wanted $59,000 for the property while at the other end, Mayor Francis R. Koenig was offering $18,000. It is believed that both parties are now discussing prices "in the $25,000 range."

The Sussin story goes back at least five years when former Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan suggested a parking lot at that site. Merchants in the area for several years previous had been seeking additional parking facilities.

But nothing was done about it although on several occasions, Alderman Peter J. Mancuso (D-12th Ward), took the floor of the Common Council to complain about fire hazards and building violations in the structure.

Mancuso pressed his demands that either the owner bring the building up to standard or that it be vacated and condemned.

City Building Inspector George E. Radcliffe, at the prompting of Mancuso, inspected the building last fall and came up with 27 separate violations of the city's building codes. The building was condemned on Nov. 16, 1971.

Sussin, taken to court by the city in March of this year for failure to correct the violations, claimed that his tenants kept the building in a constant state of disrepair despite his efforts to maintain it. He was given even more time after his trial to make repairs, but later, the city decided its best course of action was to acquire the lot. That I think we should take this one step at a time. The Sussin building could be the first step."

In other council action, Alderman Quick, also chairman of the Laws and Rules Committee, said that his committee will meet Thursday night to discuss the designation of the Jacob Bruhn building at North Front Street and Crown Street as an historical site. Quick led a tour by the Common Council center Guidance Council. The James G. Connors, director of Cuneo property was put out for public auction by the city on July 10 but drew a bid of only $2,500. Taxes due to the city on the building are in excess of $8,000 and the bid was rejected by Mayor Koenig.

Mancuso says he intends to push for acquisition of the Sussin building, as a first step in the city's parking lot program on Broadway. "I realize we need more than one parking lot on to save

Central Broadway," Mancuso told The Freeman today. "But I think we should take this one step at a time. The Sussin building could be the first step."

The city is also looking at two other sites for parking lots, Beck's building and the old Cuneo's Hotel, both on central Broadway. Kingston Trust owns Beck's and the city owns Cuneo's. Beck's has been mentioned as a possible site for a store front rehabilitation center by the Kingston Narrows Guidance Council. The James G. Connors, director of Cuneo property was put out for public auction by the city on July 10 but drew a bid of only $2,500. Taxes due to the city on the building are in excess of $8,000 and the bid was rejected by Mayor Koenig.

Mancuso says he intends to push for acquisition of the Sussin building, as a first step in the city's parking lot program on Broadway. "I realize we need more than one parking lot on to save

Central Broadway," Mancuso told The Freeman today. "But I think we should take this one step at a time. The Sussin building could be the first step."

Migrant Suit Out

KINGSTON

Action brought by Lou Grimaldi, executive director of the Ulster County Community Action Committee Inc. and two migrant workers against three public health officials has been dismissed by the Ulster County Supreme Court, Justice Louis G. Bruhn.

Grimaldi and the two migrant workers brought suit against Hollis Ingraham, New York State Commissioner of Health; William R. Donovan, a regional health director and William C. Taylor, Ulster County Health Commissioner, charging "somewhat deplorable" conditions at an Ulster County migrant labor camp.

Many Human Guinea Pigs Die

A Tragic Experiment With Syphilis Is Disclosed

WASHINGTON (AP) — For 40 years the U.S. Public Health Service has conducted a study in which human guinea pigs, denied proper medical treatment, have died of syphilis and its side effects.

The study was conducted to determine from autopsies what the disease does to the human body.

PHS officials responsible for initiating the experiment have long since retired. Current PHS officials, who say they have serious doubts about the morality of the study, also say it's too late to treat syphilis in any of the study's surviving participants.

But PHS doctors say they are rendering whatever other medical services they now can give to the survivors while the study of the disease's effects continues.

The experiment, called the Tuskegee Study, began in 1932 with about 600 Black men, mostly poor and uneducated, from Tuskegee, Ala., an area which had the highest syphilis rate in the nation at the time.

One-third of the group was free of syphilis; two-thirds showed evidence of the disease. In the syphilitic group, half were given the best treatment known at the time, but the other half, about 200 men, received no treatment at all for syphilis, PHS officials say.

As incentives to enter the program, the men were promised free transportation to and from hospitals, free hot lunches, free medicine for any disease other than syphilis and free burial after autopsies were performed.

The Tuskegee Study began 10 years before penicillin was discovered to be a cure for syphilis and 15 years before the drug became widely available. Yet even after penicillin became common, and while its use probably could have helped or saved a number of the experiment subjects, the drug was denied them, according to Dr. J.D. Millar.

He is chief of the venereal disease branch of the PHS' Center for Disease Control in Atlanta and is now in charge of what remains of the Tuskegee Study. Dr. Millar said in an interview he has serious doubts about the program.

"I think a definite moral problem existed when the study was undertaken, a more serious moral problem was overlooked in the post-war years when penicillin became available but was not given to these men, and a moral problem still exists," Dr. Millar said.

"But the study began when attitudes were much different on treatment and experimentation. At this point in time, with our current knowledge of treatment and the disease and the revolutionary change in approach to human experimentation, I don't believe the program would be undertaken," he said.

Syphilis, a highly contagious infection spread by sexual contact, can cause, if untreated, bone and dental deformations, deafness, blindness, heart disease and central nervous system deterioration.

No figures were available on when the last death occurred in the program. And one official said that apparently no conscious effort to halt the program was made after it got under way.

A 1969 CDC study of 276 treated and untreated syphilitics who participated in the Tuskegee Study showed that seven had died as a direct result of syphilis. Another 154 died of heart disease. CDC officials says they cannot determine at this late date how many of the heart disease deaths were caused by syphilis or how many additional deaths could be linked to the disease.

However, several years ago an American Medical Association study determined that untreated syphilis reduces life expectancy by 17 per cent in black men between the ages of 25 and 50, a precise description of the Tuskegee Study subjects.

Don Prince, another official in the venereal disease branch of CDC, said the Tuskegee Study had contributed some knowledge about syphilis, particularly that the morbidity and mortality rate among untreated syphilitics was not as high as previously believed.

Like Dr. Millar, Prince said he believes the study should have been concluded with penicillin treatment after World War II.

"I don't know why the decision was made in 1946 not to stop the program," Prince said. "I was unpleasantly surprised when I first came here and found out about it. It really puzzles me."

Recent reviews of the Tuskegee Study by CDC indicate that treatment now for survivors is medically questionable.

Dr. Millar said. Their average age is 74 and massive penicillin therapy, with possible ill side effects, is deemed too great a risk to the individuals, particularly for those whose syphilis is now dormant.

However, Dr. Millar added, there was a point in time when survivors could have been treated with at least some measure of success.

"The most critical moral issue about this experiment arises in the post-war era, the years after the end of World War II when penicillin became widely available."

"I know some were treated with penicillin for other diseases and then dropped from the program because the drug had some positive effect on the primary disease (syphilis). Looking at it now, one cannot see any reason they could not have been treated at that time."

First Outside New York City

Schenectady Off-Track Underway

SCHENECTADY, N.Y. (UPI) — Mayor Frank Duci rode a horse downtown Monday, hoping to be the big winner as the city inaugurated the first legal off-track betting outside New York City.

The General Electric Co. employee sporting a cowboy hat and flanked by actress Monique Van Vooren, placed a $2 wager on the D-D combination (4-4) in Monday night's double at Monticello Raceway.

The mayor's money went straight into the city coffers, as the 3-6 (C-F) pairing returned $24.20 at the Catskills harness track, 80 miles to the south.

In its first eight hours of operation, the storefront OTB parlor took in $6,294 on 2,454 bets. It was below the $10,000 daily handle needed to break even, but city officials were optimistic the system would turn a $250,000 annual profit when fully operational.

"We will provide entertainment, employment, and revenue to the city of Schenectady," proclaimed Raymond Blanchard, executive director of the OTB operation.

Among the dignitaries on hand were Howard J. Samuels, the chief of New York City's OTB; Kent H. Brown, head of the state Off-Track Betting Commission; and Leon Greenberg, president of Monticello.

Samuels told the audience of 300 persons the opening could mean "an end to hypocrisy" over legalized gambling.

"We need a change in legislation that will legalize numbers and sports betting, as well as horse racing, so that we can put into the public money the profits in this country that are going into organized crime," he said.

Samuels' operation, which started 16 months ago, now has about 80 parlors and a handle of $1.5 million a day. It produced a $15 million profit for the city and state governments in its first year, and is expected to yield a $50 million profit this year.

Schenectady, a city of 90,000, best known for its massive GE plant, finally won approval of its OTB plan after a six-month fight involving the state commission, the governor's office, and the racing industry.

It hopes to draw bets from the Albany-Schenectady-Troy area, with a metropolitan population of 700,000.

Although the initial bets are confined to Monticello, the city is negotiating to take bets on thoroughbred tracks after Saratoga opens next Monday. It was unable to get agreement with the Saratoga harness track, 30 miles to the north, and the permission to open includes a restriction that it not take harness bets during the hours Saratoga harness is running.

There were a few operational "bugs" as the Schenectady parlor, at 127 Wall St. in the downtown area, opened at 11 a.m.

The first clerk had trouble getting change for Duci's $20 bill. The rest of the city council then plunked down bets at the eight windows.

Miss Van Vooren was in the area for a summer theater performance of "The Wonderful World of Burlesque."

OFF-TRACK IN SCHENECTADY—Off-track betting got off to a busy start in Schenectady as the first OTB parlor in upstate New York opened its doors. There was much confusion on the parts of both the bet makers and the bet takers, but this young lady managed to fill out the necessary forms and get up to the window. (UPI Telephoto)

Trial Work Program Scheduled

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI) — An estimated 16,000 welfare recipients will be put to work for local governments in a trial program to teach job skills, according to the state Social Services Department.

Commissioner Abe Lavine said Monday the program will refer "employable" recipients into jobs with cities, counties and other local governments.

The hours of work will vary according to the type of job and size of the public assistance grant.

"The aim of the project," Lavine said, "is to increase the potential for self-support among employable Aid to Dependent Children recipients and to assure the maintenance of marketable skills, until they are placed in jobs," Lavine said.

The project, already underway in some parts of the state, will be in operation in 12 upstate districts and 15 of New York City's 43 welfare centers by Aug. 1 on a test basis.

Persons participating in the program will receive the same amount for their work as they are receiving on welfare.

The Weather

TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1972

Sun rises at 5:41 a. m.; sun sets at 8:23 p. m., E.D.T.
Weather: Cloudy, cooler.

Lower Hudson Valley:
Variable cloudiness through tonight with a chance of showers and thunderstorms. Highs today in the upper 70s to low 80s. Lows tonight in the low 60s. Becoming mostly sunny tomorrow with highs of near 80. Variable winds at around 10 miles per hour today and gusty near thunderstorms, becoming north at near 10 tonight and northwest at 8 to 15 tomorrow.

The jobs include teacher's aide, typist, accounting clerk, library aide, playground supervisor, messenger, food service worker, interpreter, nurse's aide and receptionist.

About 11,000 of those put to work will be in New York City. In addition there will be 180 in Rockland County, 830 in Niagara, 700 in Oneida, 415, in Albany, 280 in Cattaraugus, 220 in Chemung, 290 in St. Lawrence, 140 in Franklin, 50 in Greene, 375 in Orange, 55 in Livingston and 2,200 in Nassau counties.

The projects will continue for a year, then be evaluated to see if the proposal should be expanded to the rest of the state.

The trial plan provides public employment for aid recipients, similar to the year-old program of requiring "employable" recipients to report for work in the private sector.

Until recently, the federal government would not permit work requirements in the ADC category, the largest single welfare group.

Fisher Seeks 'Demoralizing' Win

REYKJAVIK, Iceland (UPI) — Bobby Fischer, his drive to take the world chess championship away from Boris Spassky already off to a powerful start, goes for his third win in a row today—a win that could be a demoralizing blow to the titleholder.

With the hassle over television cameras still smoldering to postpone today's game to get in the background, the players were to sit down at the board for the seventh game. Spassky, 35, a Russian journalist, plays white — and thus has the advantage of the first move.

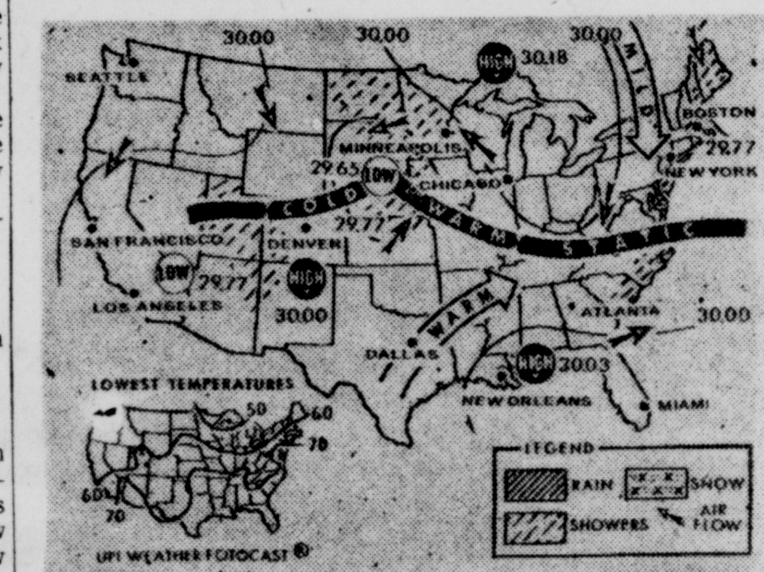

Soviet chess officials denied

Fischer has arrived late for just about every game.

Going into the seventh game, Fischer led 3½ points to 2½ for Spassky. With a win counting one point and a draw one half for each player, the titleholder needed 12 points to retain the championship while Fischer needed 12½ to win it.

Fischer lost the opening game on a mistake, then forfeited the second game by not showing up to protest television cameras installed in the hall where they are playing.

Then he won the third game, drew the next, and won the last two to go into the lead.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms are likely over the Central Rockies, Northern Plains, Upper Mississippi Valley and over the Mid-Atlantic and North Atlantic Coasts. Temperatures will be slightly cooler over the Great Lakes area with little change elsewhere.

Rondout Group Discusses Construction

KINGSTON — The Rondout Community Action Committee met Monday night at the Rondout Neighborhood Center with Phase II, the construction of a gymnasium and supporting facilities atop Phase I, the main topic of discussion.

Edward Brown, Rondout Community organizer, said that most of those persons in attendance favored immediate construction so that the facility could be ready for the coming basketball season. Some $125,000 has been earmarked by the Department of Housing and Urban Development for Phase II.

Also discussed was furnishings for the present building. Brown said that Mayor Francis R. Koenig has asked the committee to draw up a list of furniture requirements for his perusal.

Plane Crash Fatal To Woolworth Heir

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — Lance Reventlow, 37-year-old race driver and son of Woolworth heiress Barbara Hutton, was killed in a plane crash Monday evening, the sheriff's office reported today.

Three others, all Aspen residents, were killed when the single-engine Cessna went down in a box canyon during a thunderstorm about 10 miles east of this mountain resort town, the sheriff's office said. It was not immediately known what Reventlow, once married to actress Jill St. John, was doing in Aspen. A spokesman for the Federal Aviation Administration said the wreckage was found shortly before dark after an Aspen-bound pilot heard a locator beacon, a device which emits radio signals from downed aircraft. The bodies were recovered.

County Board Hears Cases

KINGSTON — Several zoning referrals from the city of Kingston and the towns of New Paltz and Woodstock were brought up at Monday night's meeting of the Ulster County Planning Board. Decision on the referrals was left to local determination.

In other action, the board endorsed the principle behind a proposed planned unit development in the Town of New Paltz as a means of preserving the countryside, but left details of the development up to the town.

A draft of the New York State Transportation Plan was also discussed at the meeting. The plan covers highways, buses, railroads, pipe lines, harbors, and airports throughout the state.

The board also decided to request more federal funding under the Comprehensive Planning Assistance Program.

Professor Is Tabbed

NEW PALTZ — Dr. Joseph D'Oranzio, associate professor of history at the State University College at New Paltz, has been named chairman of the American Historical Association Committee on Undergraduate Teaching.

The one-year term appointment was made at the association's annual convention, and is concurrent with Dr. D'Oranzio's position on the Review Board of the association.

About 18,000 persons interested in historical studies are members of the American Historical Association. It was founded in 1884, and chartered by Congress in 1889.

Kingston-Born Monsignor Named Auxiliary Bishop

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI has named a new auxiliary bishop for New York, the Vatican announced today.

The Pope named the Rev. Msgr. James P. Mahoney as auxiliary to Terence James Cardinal Cooke. He gave Msgr. Mahoney the title of titular bishop of Ipagro, a Spanish town near Sevilla which ceased to be a diocese centuries ago. Msgr. Mahoney, 47, has been vicar general for the Diocese of New York since 1967. He was born in Kingston, N.Y., and was ordained a priest in 1951. He was a military chaplain in 1954.

Pope Paul named two other bishops for the United States.

He accepted the resignation in Tulsa, Okla., as the new bishop of Grand Island. Father Sullivan, 52, was born in Horton, Mo., and became a priest in 1944.

The Pope named the Rev. James S. Sullivan, 43, as auxiliary bishop for the Diocese of Lansing, Mich. He was born in Kalamazoo, Mich., and was ordained in 1955. He is currently vice chancellor to Lansing's Bishop Alexander M. Zaleski, 71.

Life Sentence Issued for Skyjacker

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—A Mexican who said he hijacked an airliner to publicize the grievances of Chicanos was sentenced Monday to life in prison.

The judge ordered a 90-day psychiatric study, saying the results of the study may cause him to lighten the sentence.

Ricardo Chavez Ortiz, 35, an unemployed cook who has lived in the United States on and off for 15 years, was found guilty

Monday by a U.S. District Court jury.

Ortiz took over a Frontier Airlines jetliner carrying 27 passengers and five crewmen after takeoff from Albuquerque, N.M., April 13. Armed with a pistol, later found to be unloaded, he forced the pilot to land at Los Angeles.

He demanded free broadcast time to deliver a speech about what he felt were prejudices and pressures that blight the lives of Mexican Americans in the United States.

Chavez was provided with a live microphone on board the plane, and delivered a rambling monologue, broadcast over a local Spanish language radio station, about injustices to Chicanos, pollution, the war in Vietnam and the pressures and hardships of his own life. Then he surrendered.

Policeman Uses Pizza To Subdue Two Muggers

NEW YORK (UPI)—Two muggers, one armed with a knife, attacked police Sgt. David Durk Monday night as he was carrying a pizza home. Durk threw the pizza at one and shot him and wounded him, then subdued the other one.

Durk, 36, one of the officers whose revelations of police corruption led to the Knapp Commission investigation, said the muggers may have thought he was a pizza delivery man. Off duty, he was wearing old white pants and sandals.

Police said Durk was accosted by two men at 8 p.m. west of Central Park. One was armed with an eight-inch knife. The man with the knife, later identified as Alfredo Verdejo, 25, allegedly stood in front of Durk and demanded his money while the other man tried to hold Durk's hand behind his back.

Police said Verdejo lunged at Durk. The officer threw the boxed pizza at him, drew his revolver and fired several shots, hitting Verdejo in the chest. In the struggle with the second man, identified as Samuel Ledford, 24, Durk was struck on the head but managed to subdue him.

Verdejo was taken to Roosevelt Hospital where his condition was listed as serious. Durk was treated later at the hospital for a head abrasion.

Durk's wife, Arlene, came out their nearby apartment building when she heard the shooting and arrived just as her husband was placing Ledford under arrest. Durk said he was fine and headed for the police station with Ledford.

She retrieved the pizza and took it home to their two daughters.

New York Cabbie Finds America a Friendly Land

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"Nothing could be a bigger surprise than the kindness of people we have met here since we left New York. That was the reaction of a New York City cab driver who fulfilled the dream of a decade by driving his cab across the land so his family could "see this beautiful country and learn about the people of the United States."

Fortunato DiMarco, 44, a native of Palermo, Sicily, who came to the United States in 1950, saved for nine years so he could drive his yellow 1970 Ford cab to the Golden Gate. With him came his wife, Anna, and their two sons, Dominic, 18, and John, 12.

"I never thought I would see such variety in my lifetime," DiMarco said Sunday. "The plains and the mountains—so many different kinds of mountains. After 20 years, we are finally seeing it," he said. "In New York, when I pick up people from San Francisco, they always tell me to come here, to see their city. And they are very proud of this city, not like New York people," DiMarco said. "It is a peaceful, beautiful country," said Mrs. DiMarco. "People are relaxed and happy about their lives. They smile and have a good time instead of rush, rush, like New York City. It's crazy in New York City."

DiMarco told of a citation put on his windshield by a Salt Lake City traffic policeman after he had left his cab too long in a parking zone. It wasn't a summons, but a note saying: "Welcome to Salt Lake City. You're overparked, guest of ours."

"Can you imagine such a thing," exclaimed DiMarco. "Why, in New York you can get 10 summons in two minutes. And not a one of them to say welcome to anything." The DiMarcos have been on the road since July 9 and figure they will cover 10,000 miles before they get back home. They plan to stop at Disneyland, Las Vegas and points east such as Gettysburg and Valley Forge. If DiMarco had had a paying fare for his New York to San Francisco trip, instead of driving his own cab, it would have netted him $1,200, he estimates.

Manila... Mecca for The Gambler

EDITOR'S NOTE — Manila's gambling strip operates like a wide open tropical Las Vegas. The players are pampered and the games attract not only jet-setters and tourists, but the local elite as well—police officials, politicians and judges. The only dark spot: Gambling is illegal in the Philippines.

odds even further in the casinos' favor under certain circumstances. "It's not really cheating, just tricks of the trade," says one operator. "Most of the casinos play on MANILA (AP) — Among the greatest tourism attractions and entertainment bargains in the Philippines today are Manila's lavish gambling casinos. Some 22 fancy gambling halls are stretched out along palm-lined Roxas Boulevard, the city's main avenue which skirts picturesque Manila Bay.

The scene is strictly one for the tourism books—a tropical Las Vegas where gamblers can try their luck in some of the plushiest joints this side of Monte Carlo.

Thousands of guests crowd into the casinos every night to play roulette, blackjack, dice and an intriguing Spanish card game called Monte.

Players are pampered from the moment they arrive—with cigarettes, all the liquor they can drink, steak dinners and entertainment. It's all on the house as long as one is playing.

The casinos are frequented not only by tourists but jet-setters, pot smoking teen-agers and members of the elite, including policemen, politicians and judges.

There is only one dark spot in the picture. Gambling is illegal in the Philippines.

The casinos flourish thanks to an elaborate and extensive system of payoffs to local and national officials. Informed observers estimate the payoffs total well over $1 million a year.

Defense Secretary Juan Ponce Enrile says he knows nothing about such payoffs.

After a recent newspaper column about the payoff system, soldiers carried out a series of harassing show raids that did little to slow the gambling operations.

In fact, the casinos have been effectively closed only once, in 1971, just before an election in which Enrile was running for senator. Enrile lost the election and after nearly four months, the soldiers who had been guarding the casinos and holding them closed went back to their barracks. Within a few days business was booming again.

Many officials are publicly opposed to legalized gambling—a move also opposed by the influential Catholic Church.

But President Ferdinand E. Marcos' government is aware of the amount of potential tax revenue from gambling. Thus he is attempting to push a bill through Congress that would legalize gambling and provide increased tax incomes for national and local governments.

Passage of the bill would mean owners suddenly would have to pay taxes, would be subject to government supervision and regulations, probably would have to stop serving free liquor and food and would be subject to fierce competition from hotel owners who undoubtedly would open their own casinos.

Despite this, some operators, particularly those running the smaller places, favor the gambling bill because without it, they have no legal status and thus no way to collect bad debts.

The operators admit that the problems of bad checks and discounted IOUs has led to some cheating in the casinos to try and even out the losses. Sharp blackjack dealers and clever roulette croupiers are able to rig the normally good

Computer Diplomacy... Helps State Department

WASHINGTON (AP) — The clerks burrowed through stacks of card indexes and documents, TV-type screen: But not any more, thanks to a computerized document retrieval system which State Department officials say is with-out equal in the world. A year ago, he would have gotten the answer in maybe an hour—or maybe a day—after buttons and the secretary has his answer within seconds via the government's oldest department, which is not noted for quick adoption of new technological gadgetry.

"When I came into the department," Rogers said in an interview, "it had moved from the quill pen to the ballpoint, along with many other organizations."

"We've now got a management information system based on computers that has no equal in this country or abroad," he added.

The system is called SADI, which stands for Secretarial Automated Data Index. It offers lightning-fast retrieval of any of some 28,000 papers flowing annually to and from the secretary of State and a half-dozen principal State Department officers.

Also cranked into SADI are deadlines on each document assigned for action somewhere in the State Department's large bureaucracy.

This automated spur from on high is rated as a mixed blessing in lower echelons. Under the old setup, recalled one veteran diplomat, the boss might forget or a document could get "lost."

The system can even supply high-speed printouts for those who want a piece of paper showing what they've just seen on SADI's cathode ray tube (CRT) screen. Complete documents are stored on 4 x 6-inch microfilm cards, each one able to carry some 60 pages of text, quickly re-producible by photo process.

State Department security agents have expressed concern about the possibility that spies might get secrets out of SADI that they couldn't under the old paper-filing setup.

To bar unauthorized persons from using the system, SADI is programmed to operate only if the questioner punches in a code word, which is changed daily.

And at the end of each day, the keyboards are supposed to be pulled out and locked away so that no night-time intruder can fish for information.

Still, bothering security sleuths is the possibility that rays emitted by the electronic gear can be picked up outside the State Department building, and decoded by spies using sensitive radio eavesdropping devices.

The State Department's executive staff seems happy to trade off the old difficulties for the new ones, however. As one senior aide put it:

"A year ago people would have a fit of ecstasy over getting a document in an hour. Now they scream if you take more than a minute."

The staff is pushing ahead, therefore, with plans for more computerized diplomacy.

One proposal is to put drafts of outgoing telegrams on the CRT screens first, rather than on paper, and getting the texts revised and cleared by the proper officials by push-button control. Once a telegram received a final okay, it could be transmitted to a U.S. embassy abroad with the push of another button.

Consideration also is being given to installing large-screen CRT's at the desks of the secretary of State and other top officers. At present, the sets are in adjacent offices where aides do the button pushing when their superiors want information.

The big-screen tubes would put direct, immediate display of incoming and outgoing telegrams at the fingertips of the executives.

Whether the computerization of the foreign affairs command system saves money as well as time is one question for which neither SADI nor its designers have a definitive answer.

Rogers said its most important effect is that "we can serve the president and the country more efficiently."

Other State Department officials figure the $50,000-a-year cost of operating the system will pay for itself more as time goes by, since SADI will be able to handle the anticipated future growing flow of executive documents without adding personnel.

State Post To De Stasio

SYRACUSE

Vincent J. DeStasio of Rosendale, Tilson Post 1219, American Legion, was elected state vice chairman of the Legion for the 1972-73 year at the 54th annual convention held this weekend.

DeStasio is a former commander of Post 1219 and a former county commander.

George Bragg of Highland, a member of Lloyd Post 193, was elected first vice commander of the Third District. He moves up from his position of second vice commander in the district. County Commander Orrin DeGraff led a 14-man delegation from Ulster County to the state convention.

P. Joseph Beichert of Esopus Post 1298 was reelected to a three-year term as director of Boys State. Vice Commander DiStasio was selected as a delegate to the American Legion National Convention in Chicago in August.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 25, 1972

WASHINGTON — George McGovern has only one chance in five of upsetting President Nixon in the November election.

These are the carefully researched odds of Jimmy the Greek Snyder, the famed Las Vegas oddsmaker, who prepares his political prognostications exclusively for us.

Off the cuff, he rated the President a 4-to-1 favorite on the eve of McGovern's nomination. But now Jimmy has completed a careful comparison of the two candidates, using a point system to rate them.

He has assessed their advantages and disadvantages in three categories: Support, issues and image. Here are Jimmy's calculations:

SUPPORT—He gives Nixon an 8-to-3 advantage in financial support; 10-to-1, foreign support; 10-to-1, Republicans; 10-to-2, Big Business; 7-to-3, Jewish Americans; 6-to-4, independents; 5-to-4, labor; 5-to-4 women. McGovern is ahead 7-to-3 with youth, 6-to-3 with Democrats and 6-to-3 with minorities. All total led, Nixon has a 70-to-40 advantage.

ISSUES—Rating how the two candidates stand with the public on the issues, Jimmy believes the President has a 10-to-2 edge over McGovern on foreign affairs; 10-to-2, business; 6-to-1, military; 7-to-3, busing; and 9-to-7, law and order. Jimmy rates both candidates even, 7-to-7, on their economic proposals. McGovern is given a 9-to-6 advantage on welfare; 10-to-8, farm subsidies; 9-to-7, federal spending; and 3-to-2, revenue sharing. Summed up, Nixon comes out 72-to-53 ahead of McGovern.

IMAGE — Although President Nixon has had image troubles, Jimmy rates him higher than McGovern in all categories, as follows: 10-to-7, recognition; 9-to-5, politician; 7-to-5, credibility; 7-to-5, charisma; 7-to-6, intelligence; and 9-to-8, religion. The total Nixon edge is 49-to-37.

By Jimmy's evaluation, Nixon is a 5-to-1 favorite to be re-elected.

Chou Remembers
Chinese Premier Chou En-lai is still smarting over the late John Foster Dulles's refusal to shake hands with him in 1954.

It happened in Geneva, where the major powers were carving Indochina into spheres of influence. Chou walked toward Dulles and held out his hand. Dulles hesitated, then clasped his hands behind his back.

The Secretary of State muttered, "I cannot," and stalked out of the room.

The slight contributed to 20 years of Chinese-American hostility. Had better relations been achieved, the Korean and Vietnam wars probably could have been avoided.

The Dulles rebuff still burns inside old Chou. He recalled the incident during his recent visit with House leaders Hale Boggs, D-La., and Gerald Ford, R-Mich., in Peking.

Smiling, Chou said that at least Dulles's No. 2 man, Undersecretary Bevell Smith, was a gentleman. Smith held a teapot in his right hand so he had an excuse not to shake hands, recalled Chou. Still, Smith reached over with his left hand and grasped the Chinese Premier's arm.

Ugly Russian
The best-selling book, "The Ugly American," catalogued the greaseless way American officials abroad administered foreign aid in the 1960s.

Now a sequel could be written about the Ugly Russian. From Cairo, for example, the U.S. mission reports that the Russians have alienated their hosts unnecessarily as the Americans did in the postwar years.

The Russians have strutted about Egypt as if they were the rulers rather than the guests. The typical Ugly Russian shops in Russian commissaries, attends Russian parties.

He travels to work on roads that are off limits to the Egyptians. Even President Sadat, according to one report, was stopped from visiting a Soviet naval facility. He had to go through the Russian Embassy, finally, to get into a naval base in his own country.

Russian military advisors are also inclined to belittle the Egyptian army. To the Ugly Russian, an Egyptian is at best inefficient at worst a coward.

This arrogant, domineering attitude toward the Egyptians is one reason Sadat is now kicking most of them out.

Footnote: Sadat's decision to oust the Russian advisors was triggered by his secret correspondence with Soviet party chief Leonid Brezhnev. Sadat had requested more sophisticated weapons from the Russians. Instead, Brezhnev sent a letter urging a continued ceasefire. He sought to restrain the Egyptians from precipitating another war with Israel. So Sadat told the Russian advisors to get out.

Ironically, President Nixon's inner circle were overjoyed with the news. Now they are having sober second thoughts. A secret intelligence analysis warns that Sadat's expulsion of the Russians removes their restraining influence and may signal renewed hostilities with the Israelis.

Freeman Editorials

Weather Or Not

Rain-rain-go-away has become the mournful plaint of food growers and dairymen in the Hudson Valley following the wettest and most uncomfortable spring and summer in this writer's memories.

March was wet, April was wet, May was wet, June was wet and July, now coming to a blissful conclusion, was wet AND hot. However, the personal discomfort and constantly clammy feeling pale in significance when compared to the possible financial straits facing our area agricultural people.

As reported in a recently concluded two-part Freeman series, there's big trouble a-brewing unless the skies dry for a while. The first cuttings of hay were a complete disaster so winter feed for livestock will probably be in short supply—and expensive. Corn has been stunted with some fields so inundated as to appear to be small lakes; countless thousands of heads of lettuce have rotted on the ground; and the only produce that seems to be thriving, as one wag put it, is mushrooms growing under the living room sofa.

The old adage of everyone talking about the weather but not doing anything about it is still all too true, but one can only hope that the jet stream would go back to where it was, if that's the cause; or they stop seeding clouds; or that they stop sending men to the moon. Noah—move over.

Unprecedented Act

Just as the publicized determination of President George Meany of the AFL-CIO to not vote for any candidate for President of the United States is a poor example, so, too is the action of The Newspaper Guild in endorsing Sen. George McGovern.

There are 33,000 members of the Guild.

How they vote, act, think, talk, discuss, debate as individuals is strictly their business. But because of the particular, specialized nature of their profession, it is something else again when the Guild president takes a stand, on authorization of his executive council, and presumes to speak for the entire membership, which is composed of working newspapermen as well as workers in newspapers' commercial and advertising departments.

So it is heartening to see that the endorsement has been strongly criticized not only from without the union ranks but also from within the membership.

Reporters and editors from some of the nation's best-known newspapers in Washington and New York have signed petitions disassociating themselves from the endorsement.

This doesn't necessarily mean that they are Republicans and will vote to re-elect President Nixon. As a matter of fact, the opposite is more likely true. Desevered or not, the working newspapermen (and women) have a reputation for being free-thinkers, liberals, exponents of philosophies slightly to the left of center.

Chances are that more of the writers and the editors will be McGovern men.

But they just don't want to be regimented, to be cast in the role of merely following the leader and so the rebellion within the ranks not only should be applauded, it should inspire other Guild locals to likewise stand up and be counted with their own declarations of independence.

Criticism of the endorsement also came from Sen. Barry Goldwater, who from personal experience knows the significance of organizational endorsements, and from Clark MacGregor, director of the campaign to reelect President Nixon.

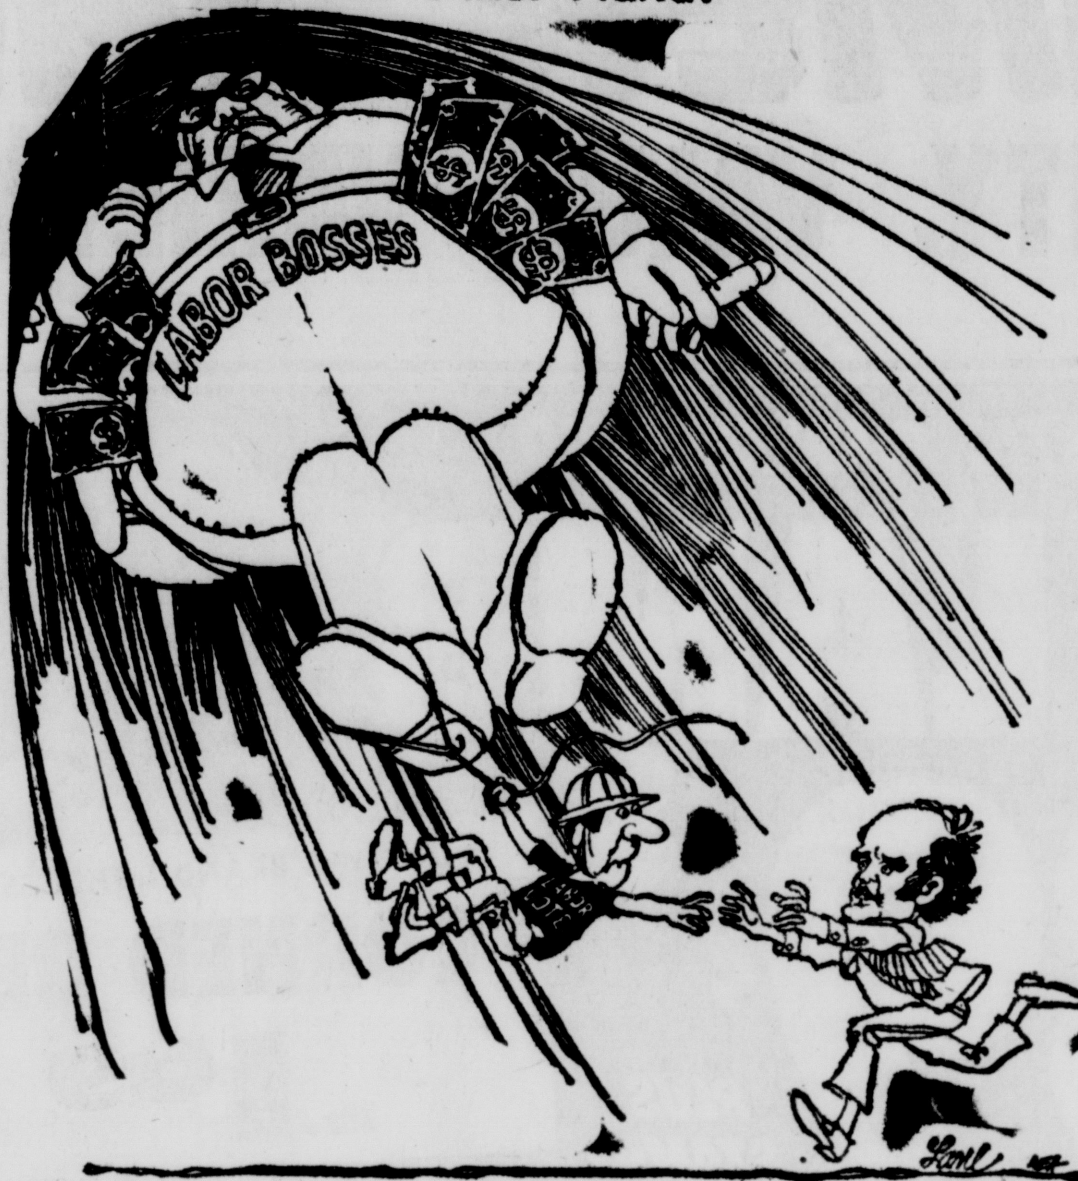

And even though they were predictable, they still make sense.

Said the Arizona senator, "If The Newspaper Guild is going to take a political position for the first time in its history, it's time that the American people who are dependent upon Guild members for their news are told about it."

And that's the nub of the situation. Most Americans, reading that the Guild had endorsed Mr. McGovern, would come to a logical conclusion that virtually every story written about the presidential race would be the product of a biased writer, immediately creating a credibility gap.

To allow such a state to develop would be sheer irresponsibility. Thus the move from within the Guild ranks to repudiate the statement of the Guild president is both timely and commendable.

Voting Coercion

WASHINGTON — The general impression given by aides at the Republican and Democratic headquarters is that millions of voters may approach election day without a clear idea of what each candidate stands for and that a campaign virtually of a personal nature is necessary to win the votes of a majority of the citizens of each state.

This seems surprising in a democracy in which the people are well informed or at least can become acquainted with the facts by reading newspapers and magazines or watching television during the next three months. The notion is being conveyed that voters are lined up by pressures of various kinds, and that there is not the freedom of choice which is so often boasted of in the United States.

There is, to be sure, a demand for organizational work. Lots of people are indifferent and will not register to go to the polls on Election Day unless urged to do it. But a vast number do not need to be pushed into the voting booths. In many cases, there will be unpleasant kinds of what might be called "Pressure." Members of labor unions, for instance, will be told that their leaders are going to vote for a specific nominee and want the rank and file to do likewise.

Sooner or later, there will be an inquiry as to the forms of coercion used in presidential elections, because voters should not be subjected to any undue influence. Campaign workers will be employed to call on registered voters to urge them to support a particular party, and there is nothing wrong with this. But when members of a large organization are told that their head wants them to vote for a certain candidate, then freedom of choice is impaired.

Recently, the press has published a number of items telling how some labor-union officials have announced their preference for individuals seeking office. The inference is that the ranks of labor will be asked to follow what the officers say is their choice. But actually, union members are intelligent enough to make up their own minds about who they want to see elected President of the United States, and no improper influence should be imposed upon them. Notices urging them to be sure to register and go to the polls are proper and will be helpful. Attempts to get pledges of support for candidates sometimes lead to improprieties that tend to deprive the citizen of his freedom to make his own decision on Election Day.

Perhaps meetings of labor unions can be held and speeches made presenting the point of view of one political party or the other. This has long been customary. But members should not be in any way required to follow the decision of high officials of an organization when they announce their backing of one or the other of the national candidates.

The implication in the last few days has been that the endorsement by the labor leaders means immediate support by the membership of the organization and that the workers themselves may not exercise their own judgment. No one but the voter, however, is present in the election booth when he casts his ballot, and a citizen can do so with confidence that his vote will be kept secret. Just the totals will be revealed.

Quite a number of organizations will be formed, of course, whose sole objective will be to pledge its constituents to vote for the nominee extolled. These will extend throughout the country. Many of the local units of this kind not only contribute funds but also participate in various movements that help the nominee to win and manage to become a recognized body of campaign workers who later seek rewards and get them.

During the next three months, representatives of both parties will be addressing different groups of voters and will be trying to persuade them to back their respective candidates. This kind of campaigning is proper and has been practiced for a long time. But how a man votes is his own secret. As far as campaign workers are concerned, they can only tell whether their arguments on behalf of their candidate have been successful when the final returns have come in and the portion of the vote for each candidate has been disclosed.

Where Nostalgia Does End

WASHINGTON — As fearsome Valkyries once kidnapped Norse princes, so America's popular culture today is in the grip of the "Golden Oldies." The music of the 1950s blares every where, creating new industries, old memories and doubts about American gods.

A saloon on H Street here, a block from the White House, has been renamed "The Class Reunion" and decorated with giant photos of Charles Van Doren, Joe McCarthy, Sgt. Bilko and Edward R. Murrow. The music, of course, is strictly Snooky Lanson and Gisele McKenzie.

The reason most popular music radio stations have gone on a mercantile binge after "solid gold" is economic. The most fitful and flush consumers sought by advertisers are between 25 and 34 years old. Nostalgia, therefore, is profitable.

It's no news, of course, that Madison Avenue market analysts are the enduring Medics of an American Renaissance or that disc jockeys with their solid-gold recordings are our Benvenuto Cellinis. But the deeper psychological reasons why this revival of the '50s is popular and profitable are worth examining.

If one were to hazard a guess on when nostalgia as a manifestation of pop culture began, it might be in the early 1950s itself. At just about the time Bill Haley and his Comets were rocking around the clock, an enterprising record manufacturer produced at great expense a handsome, soft, white-covered collection of Glenn Miller recordings, reissued approximately a decade after the trombonistband leader disappeared in a flight over the English Channel.

In the uncertainty of Korean war times the memory of the Stage Door Canteen seemed like the Bower of Bliss. Then nostalgia took an off turn.

At about the time rock and roll drove "Your Hit Parade" type of music off the air Sputnik arose in the 1957 skies and American attitudes about youth and innocence changed.

Nostalgia gets short shrift when the Russians are coming. Youth became not only the hope of the future, but also its chemists, physicists and missile-makers. Education was enshrined as the state religion for a brief 10-year reign, ending in the campus riots of 1968. The music all that time was increasingly complex. Beated, Simoned and Garfunkled. In a word, "heavy."

Now, the non-nostalgic popular music is simple again, and in the case of the Carpenters, those latter-day Andrews Sisters, simple-minded. Only five years ago understanding Paul Simon's lyrics required a university background. Today Harry Chapin's "Taxi Song" is the Aeneid of a contentedly proletarian cabbie "takin' tips and gettin' stoned."

The heroes of the current "Last Picture Show" were 1950s non-collegiate, but "The Graduate" of 1968 is being revived with the highbrow type of "Citizen Kane" or "Alexander Nevsky."

The failed god of the baculaureate degree means eventually that nostalgia is hoist on its own profitable petard and pop music will move ahead. This trend can be seen in Boston's Kenmore Square, a neon holy ground to all age groups—"Yesterday" for those over 30, "K-K-Katy's" and "Lucifer" for those under 30. One night last week "Yesterday" was deserted and the two other joints were alive with post-nubile folk twisting to such 1950s madrigals as "Splish-Splash, I Was Takin' a Bath."

If you read Rolling Stone, you'll find a durable feature of the now-generation's periodical is its obituary section ("Clyde McPhatter Dead at 38.") Paul Simon gave an interview after his 30th birthday and sounded like Clemenceau discussing World War I.

Who knows what's ahead? Some guy is on the radio playing Bach and Handel on an electric gee-tar. And the part of Chubby Checker will be played by William Jennings Bryan.

City Police Nab Driver

A 27-year-old Sawkill man stopped and cited on Broadway at 2:15 a.m. today for vehicle and traffic violations, later was charged with second degree assault on a police officer and resisting arrest.

Thomas Myers of Sawkill Trailer Park, was overtaken on Broadway by Patrolmen George Deyo and Michael Jubie and charged with passing a flashing red light, failure to keep to the right, speeding and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle.

According to police, Myers allegedly became abusive and punched and kicked Officer Deyo. He was subdued and taken to police headquarters and booked for the six charges.

Dr. Arnold Case...Restraining Order

By JON POWERS

SAUGERTIES
The Saugerties Board of Education successfully petitioned for a temporary restraining order Monday that prevents Dr. Dexter O. Arnold from resuming his post as Superintendent of Schools.

New York State Supreme Court Justice Russell G. Hunt

issued the temporary restraining order at the request of the Board of Education. The order remains in effect until Friday. Dr. Arnold was dismissed by the Board of Education on June 30. Two weeks later, he filed an appeal with the New York State Education Department. Then, on Thursday, the Education Department ordered that Dr. Arnold be reinstated until a full hearing could be held and a final determination made. The Board of Education, however, responded by petitioning for the temporary restraining order. For the second time, as a result, Dr. Arnold has been relieved of his duties as Superintendent of Schools.

The temporary restraining order was served Monday on Commissioner of Education

Ewald B. Nyquist and Dr. Arnold. It stays the order issued last week by Deputy Commissioner John M. Ambach that reinstated Dr. Arnold to the Superintendent's post he has held since 1963. The restraining order remains in effect until Friday, when the Board of Education will seek a preliminary injunction against Dr. Arnold's reinstatement.

"The purpose of this litigation," said Board of Education President Robert Francello, "is to seek a declaratory judgment indicating that the State Education Department does not have the jurisdiction to enter into a contract dispute between a school district and one of its employees."

Despite the recent appeals and counter-appeals, it is apparent that the case will finally be settled at a State Education Department hearing. A hearing date has not yet been set, however, and the Commissioner of Education is still reviewing the case.

One of Dr. Arnold's main contentions is that the Board of Education has not given specific and detailed reasons for his dismissal. Francello noted earlier, however, that the Board of Education will file the complete list of charges at the Education Department hearing.

The temporary restraining order issued Monday in Supreme Court in Albany was included in a show cause order. The order also contained a request by the Board of Education to permit a hearing to be held Friday for the preliminary injunction.

Mischievous Cadet Reinstated

MISCHIEF PRONE HD
NEW YORK (AP) — A mischief-prone cadet who was expelled from the U.S. Military

Academy for compiling 107 demerits in six months has been ordered reinstated pending formal hearings on the charges of misconduct against him. The demerits, five more than are allowed during a single academic year, included such infractions as having a dirty uniform, needing a haircut, drinking in an unauthorized place and making an unauthorized telephone call.

Charging that he had been denied due process of law, Joachim Hagopian, 22, of East Longmeadow, Mass., started a suit against Secretary of the Army Robert Froehke, West Point Superintendent Maj. Gen. William Knowlton and Commandant Brig. Gen. Samuel Walker.

The would-be officer charged that he never received a fair hearing to "testify or present evidence, or to confront" adverse testimony or to examine or explain adverse materials considered by the board.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles L. Briant Jr., in a decision announced Monday, granted a preliminary injunction and ordered the academy to reinstate Hagopian.

Briant noted that the same officer reported the alleged infractions, awarded the demerits and subsequently ruled on the validity of the demerits.

"This is an unfortunate merger of function that the officer, who made the report and acted upon it reviewed his own decision," the judge said.

Briant also restrained West Point from ordering Hagopian to active duty, but warned the erring cadet to "comport himself in all respects as required of an officer, gentleman and cadet in good standing."

Woman Dies... Autopsy Ordered

By WALTER S. CLARK

RHINEBECK

An 81-year-old Rhinebeck woman who was shot and pistol-whipped by a would-be burglar on the night of April 19, died at 6:30 p.m. Monday at the Northern Dutchess Hospital, and an autopsy has been ordered to determine if the wounds inflicted by the yet-unapprehended man caused her death.

Mrs. Mildred Taylor had been hospitalized since the night of the brutal attack. Rhinebeck State Police said today that no trace of the whereabouts of the woman's assailant has been uncovered despite the intensive investigation by State Police BCI men from Troop K, who have questioned several suspects in the last three months.

The man sought in connection with the incident is considered dangerous, authorities said, and he is believed to be armed. A composite of the suspect by a State Police artist described the much-sought man as between 25 and 35 years of age, about 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighing between 150 and 160 pounds and medium build. His complexion is dark and his hair is dark brown, curly on top with curls falling over his forehead.

At the time of the assault the intruder was reportedly wearing a red and white, or brown and white seersucker sport coat, dark trousers and a blue tie with a big knot.

It is believed that he had a 1971 Plymouth (Duster or similar model) car with medium or dark blue metallic bottom and white vinyl top. The car has dark colored interior with shift on steering column, bench type seats. The vehicle could have registration plates issued in New York, New Jersey or Massachusetts, authorities said.

Mrs. Taylor was alone in her home on South Street in this Northern Dutchess County village on the night of April 19, when the hunted man entered under ruse of inquiring if a "Mrs. Ferguson" lived there or on South Street.

The man ascertained Mrs. Taylor was alone. He reportedly whipped a handgun from his pocket and demanded money. The woman offered him $5 and the intruder demanded more.

Troopers said the woman went to the living room and knocked on the wall as a signal to a neighbor that she was in trouble. The man apparently saw the signal and then reportedly shot the woman in the right side, and then beat her on the head with the gun police said. The man then fled and a nation-wide search has been conducted since with no success.

State Police officials have requested that anyone having any information about the man or the shooting incident, call the nearest state police station. Any information provided will be held in strictest confidence, according to State Police of

Port Jervis Has Mock Disaster

PORT JERVIS, N.Y. (AP) —

In Port Jervis's first "mock disaster" exercise, the word went out Monday night that a building had collapsed. Within minutes 300 men of fire, police and hospital units from here and the surrounding area converged on the scene and began rescue operations.

The concept of the training exercise had been developed by various public agencies of the city and the local area, including neighboring Pennsylvania, to develop coordinated, efficient handling of real disaster situations.

The starting time of Monday's exercise, however, was known only to the city's fire chief and acting police chief, who sounded the alarm. The rescue operations included the evacuation of 25 supposedly injured victims to nearby hospitals and a simulation of patient treatment at the medical facilities.

A GREAT BUY IS ONLY A GREAT BUY IF YOU CAN BUY IT.

A good deal isn't going to wait for you to get the money. So we've created a checking account that lets you borrow simply by writing a check.

It's called Line of Credit. Our way of lending you up to $5,000 anytime, anyplace.

With a Line of Credit checkbook, you can write yourself a loan whenever you need extra money. So if you come across an opportunity that won't wait, you won't have to wait. Just write a check.

You don't have to worry about filling out a new application every time you use it. And you don't have to worry about getting in over your head, either. We won't let you do that.

Every month we'll send you a statement showing just how much you've borrowed. You can pay it back all at once or just a little at a time. Naturally, you only pay interest on what you borrow.

We think money should be there when you need it. After all, a great buy isn't a great buy if you don't buy it.

Circus Slated For Kingston On Wednesday

KINGSTON

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. Circus, the world's largest canvas-enclosed circus, is coming to Kingston for a one-day stand, Wednesday.

There will be two shows on Wednesday: at 2 and 8 p.m. The big-top doors will open one hour before each performance at Dietz Stadium.

The Kingston Kiwanis Club will once again sponsor the circus in this area, with proceeds to be used to help finance the civic and charitable activities of the local service club.

The circus features 150 performers recruited from 16 different countries. An extensive menagerie with a large variety of wild animals, three herds of elephants and a giant five-ton hippopotamus are major attractions.

Among the many arena stars to be seen with this year's edition of the big show will be David Hoover, presenting the world-famous mixed group of lions and tigers in the huge steel arena.

Also scheduled to appear Wednesday are the Lopex Troupe of sensational somersaulting acrobats; the bareback riding Suarez Family; the Les Blocks, a daring company of high wire artists; Miss Mimi Zerbini, queen of the high trapeze; and the acrobatic Oscarians.

A wide assortment of acrobatic specialists, jugglers and animal trainers will also perform Wednesday.

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. circus will also be a highlight of Wednesday's circus performance.

Tickets for each performance may be purchased at the door or from any Kiwanis Club member.

The Clyde Beatty-Cole Bros. circus has been internationally acclaimed as one of the world's most exciting big-top attractions.

NOTICE

HEREBY GIVEN

THAT A PUBLIC HEARING WILL BE HELD IN THE LEGISLATIVE CHAMBERS IN THE COUNTY OFFICE BUILDING, 100 N. STATE STREET, KINGSTON, NEW YORK, ON WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 2, 1972 AT 7 P.M.

The said public hearing shall be held for the purpose of considering proposed Local Law No. 3, 1972 establishing a new County Charter for government for Ulster County, namely, an Ulster County Charter.

This charter provides for a County Legislature, County Executive, County Controller, District Attorney, Sheriff, County Clerk and three Coronors to be duly elected by the electors of the County.

The following departments are also provided for by the Charter: Department of Social Services, Department of Public Health, Department of Mental Health, Department of General Administration, Department of Public Works, Department of Planning and Research, Department of Finance. In addition, there are provisions for the office of County Attorney, Real Property Tax Services Agency, Personnel Administration, Central Office Services, Weights and Measures, Central Purchasing, Data Processing, Division of Fire Safety, and miscellaneous divisions. The functions, divisions and services provided by the County Charter for each of the departments, divisions and services, and the duties of the personnel involved are clearly enumerated and specifically set forth in said Charter.

ARTICLE I—establishes a Charter Form of Government and incorporates the Home Rule Law granted by the State and Federal Governments, and further provides for the continuity of existing laws and ordinances.

ARTICLE II—establishes the Legislative branch along with the power and duties of the Legislature. It provides for the adoption of local laws, ordinances, resolutions, legislative acts, and in addition, there provides for membership vacancies in the Legislature.

ARTICLE III—establishes the executive branch, namely the County Executive, with provisions for his election, term, qualifications, powers and duties, and establishes a procedure for removal of a County Executive, and further provides a method of filling a vacancy in the office of the County Executive.

ARTICLE IV—establishes the Department of General Administration and provides for the powers and duties of this Department along with divisions connected with said Department.

ARTICLE V—establishes a Department of Finance with a Commissioner, his qualifications, term, powers and duties. This Article further provides for a Real Property Tax Service Agency, its personnel, their powers and duties.

ARTICLE VI—establishes an office of Comptroller, staff and Acting Comptroller, his election, term, qualifications, powers and duties.

ARTICLE VII—establishes the office of County Attorney, his qualifications, term, powers and duties, and further provides for his selection of a Deputy County Attorney and staff.

ARTICLE VIII—establishes a Department of Public Works and provides for a Commissioner, his qualifications and term of office. In addition, it provides for and establishes the Commissioner's powers and duties. This Article also provides for a County Engineer.

ARTICLE IX—establishes a Department of Social Services, and sets forth his qualifications and term of office. In addition, this Article establishes a Board of Health and abolishes local boards of health.

ARTICLE X—establishes the Department of Mental Hygiene and provides for a Commissioner of Mental Health and sets forth his powers and duties. It further provides for a Board of Mental Health.

ARTICLE XI—establishes a Department of Planning and Research and provides for a Director for said department by appointment, his powers and duties. It further establishes an advisory Planning Board.

ARTICLE XII—establishes an office of County Clerk and sets forth his powers and duties. This Article further provides for a Deputy Clerk, staff and Acting County Clerk.

ARTICLE XIII—establishes the office of Sheriff setting forth his duties and powers, and provides for a Deputy Sheriff and an Acting Sheriff.

ARTICLE XIV—establishes an Office of District Attorney, his powers and duties, and sets forth certain restrictions of the District Attorney.

ARTICLE XV—establishes an office of Coroners providing for three coroners, their powers, duties, election, qualifications and term of office.

ARTICLE XVI—provides for other agencies, organization of departments, divisions and agencies, rules and regulations, conflicts of interest and political activities. This Article provides the County Legislature with the method of creating other agencies and provides for the continuance of the existing divisions and agencies currently operating in the County at the time the County Charter is adopted in addition to those provided for by this Charter.

ARTICLE XVII—entitled "Transitional Provisions" provides for an orderly transition from the current form of government to the government provided for by the Charter, and further sets up the effective date of the Charter.

EDWARD W. SNYDER, Clerk
Ulster County Legislature

Weddings Announced

Longhi-Robinson

Miss Darlene Helen Longhi was united in marriage to Floyd Robinson Jr. on Sunday, July 9 at 1 p.m. in Clinton Avenue United Methodist Church.

The Rev. Joseph G. Bailey, pastor, officiated at the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Eugene De Camillis provided traditional wedding selections.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Longhi, 34 Hunter Street, Kingston. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Bea Robinson, 82 South Hamilton Street, Poughkeepsie and Floyd Robinson of Poughkeepsie.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride selected a Chantilly lace gown, styled with a sabrina neckline, long tapered sleeves and fitted waistline. Scalloped lace bordered the bouffant skirt and tiers of lace enhanced the back of the gown. Her two tiered silk illusion veil was attached to a headpiece of aurora crystals, lace and pearls. She carried a nosegay of white daisies, baby's breath and white streamers.

Maid of honor was Winifred Whispell, cousin of the bride, Kingston. Attendants were Mrs. Marie Reed, Glenford; Miss Deborah Longhi, sister of the bride; Miss Tammi Smith, cousin of the bride, both of Kingston, junior bridesmaids.

The bride selected a color scheme of pale blue, mint green, pink and yellow for her bridal attendants. The chiffon gowns featured lace trim.

Miss Whispell carried a nosegay of yellow daisies and Mrs. Reed carried a nosegay of blue daisies. Miss Longhi and Miss Smith carried baskets of rainbow colored daisies.

Robert Leonardo of Kingston was best man. Ushers were Mark Robinson, brother of the bridegroom, and Frank Schimpfle of Kingston.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride attended Kingston City Schools. The bridegroom attended Arlington schools and served two years in the U.S. Army. He is employed by Shop-Rite, Wappingers Falls.

After a wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the couple will reside in Poughkeepsie.

Levine-Mezer

Congregation Anshe Emeth, Hudson, provided the setting for the marriage of Miss Lois Beth Levine, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. David R. Levine of Hudson, and Howard Cabitt Mezer, son of Paul Mezer of Miami Beach, Fla., formerly of Kingston, and the late Mrs. Mezer.

Rabbi Harry L. Lawrence officiated at the double ring ceremony which took place on June 18.

The bride wore a floor length gown, fashioned with an empire bodice and bishop sleeves of organza. The long full sleeves were cuffed with ruffled lace which also formed a V-detail on the bodice. Matching lace banded the A-line skirt and edged the chapel length detachable train. A narrow headband of organza and matching lace secured her triple tiered silk illusion veil and she carried a clutch bouquet of stephanotis, sweetheart roses and baby's breath.

Miss Barbara Levine was maid of honor for her sister and Steven Mezer, brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

The bride is enrolled in Tufts University and will be student-teaching in Winchester, Mass. this fall. Her husband is a senior chemical engineering student at Northeastern University. He is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Gold of Kingston.

After a wedding trip to Bermuda, Mr. and Mrs. Mezer will reside at 41 Creighton Street, Cambridge, Mass.

Benz-Cloud

The Rev. Msgr. John Reardon of St. John Evangelist Church, Centerville, celebrated the nuptial Mass and officiated at the double ring wedding ceremony of Lorraine Ann Benz and Dane Allen Cloud.

The wedding took place Saturday, July 1 at noon in St. John Evangelist Church. Judy Fiero provided traditional wedding selections. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Benz of Route 3, Box 191, Saugerties, and the bridegroom is the son of Mrs.

Lois Winger of Ulster Trailer Park, Kingston, and Mr. R. Cloud of Louisiana.

George W. Benz gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a floor length gown of white muslin, hemmed with lace. The leg of mutton-style sleeves were also fashioned of lace. She carried an old-fashioned bouquet of white daisies and pink baby roses and baby's breath. A crown of matching flowers served as her headpiece.

Denise Marie Benz, Route 3, Box 191, Saugerties, served as maid of honor for her sister. She wore a floral print floor length gown and a floral crown headpiece. Miss Benz carried an old fashioned bouquet of white, blue and lavender daisies and baby's breath.

Thomas O'Halloran, Kingston, was best man. Thomas Benz of Saugerties, brother of the bride, served as an usher.

A garden reception for 60 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Mrs. Cloud was graduated from Saugerties High School, and is employed by Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, Kingston. Her husband, an alumnus of Kingston High School, is employed by Pilgrim Furniture Company, Kingston.

The couple will reside in Saugerties.

BENEFIT BARN SALE—Hadassah of Kingston will be sponsoring a barn sale on July 30 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., the Freeman Women's Department learned today. DEAR REVEREND FINLEY: Congratulations on both counts. Whether you kept your hair because of your wife, or kept that wife because of your hair is anybody's guess, but the salt water rinse is news to me. I have heard of wives telling their husbands to go soak their heads. But in SALT water?

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that an ex-convict is barred from holding public office. Is that true? Also, does he lose his right to vote?

I was convicted of a felony, and served my time. That was nine years ago. I am straight now, and nothing in this world could make me break the law again.

Thank you in advance for any information you can give me.

WONDERING IN MASSACHUSETTS

DEAR WONDERING: Thru the prompt and courteous cooperation of your very able senator, Edward W. Brooke, I have learned that the conviction of a felony in Massachusetts does not thereafter bar one from holding public office or voting.

However, an individual convicted of corrupt practices (or bribery) with regard to elections is barred from voting and holding public office for three years.

DEAR ABBY: I'm glad you published that letter from a bride of four months who had never had sex. Usually people are too ashamed to talk about it, so they keep it to themselves.

I had the same experience, only I was a virgin for nearly five years! I was young and naive at the time and kept thinking it was my fault for not being able to turn my husband on.

By the time I realized that he could be to blame, I had such an inferiority complex I didn't care if I lived or died.

I went to my parish priest and he said, "Pray to God and everything will be all right."

Then I went to my Bishop. He said, "Threaten to leave him and maybe he will shape up. If he doesn't, you have grounds for an annulment in the Catholic church."

I went to a doctor. He said, "Insist that your husband seek professional help — medical and psychological. If he refuses, leave him."

That's what I did. (He refused to get help so I left him.)

Tell that virgin bride of four months to do what I did — only not to wait so long.

MARRIED AND HAPPY NOW

DEAR MARRIED: Your tale isn't as unique as most people think.

Problems? Trust Abby. For a personal reply, write to ABBY, BOX 69700, L.A., CALIF. 90069 and enclose a stamped, addressed envelope.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST
(© 1972 Emily Post Institute, Inc.)

Dear Mrs. Post:

We are all guilty of the annoying habit of adding to a story while another is telling it, but I had an experience at a gathering recently that prompted me to write to you.

The husband was telling about an incident and was doing very nicely until his wife started to correct the story. According to him, the incident happened on the way to New York; she told him it was on the way to New Jersey. He said that it was two years ago; she thought it was longer than that. On and on it went. How he ever completed what could have been an interesting story, I'll never know. He was embarrassed; so were the guests.

This also applies to permitting children to tell a story in their own fashion. Have you ever noticed a parent taking over the story that the child wanted to tell? Then we wonder why children become withdrawn. So what if he missed a few details—we wouldn't ever know.

Perhaps you could remind people to permit the "speaker" to speak, without interruption.

Mrs. Barnes

Dear Mrs. Barnes:

You could well have been talking about one or two acquaintances of mine! And you are right—the habit must be infuriating to the spouse, and I know it is embarrassing to the listeners.

You are also right in regard to children. The only way they can acquire facility with words and ability to communicate is by being allowed to do so in their own way.

Occasional corrections—yes, but constant changing—no. So readers, please stop and think. Could these peeves apply to you?

Dear Mrs. Post:

Is it proper to leave the protective plastic cover on lamp shades after the shade is placed on the lamp? I would also like to know if a wooden salt shaker and pepper mill set would be proper on a semi-formal dinner table or a buffet table.

Mrs. S. Carter

Dear Mrs. Carter:

The plastic covers should be removed before the shade is put on the lamp.

Wooden salt and pepper grinders may be used on all informal tables.

Dear Mrs. Post:

How are lemons and cantaloupe cut? Are they cut lengthwise?

Mrs. Willingham

Dear Mrs. Willingham:

Lemons are cut in lengthwise wedges when they are to be served with fish, or any food on which the lemon juice is squeezed. They are cut in slices for hot tea, iced tea, or as a garnish.

Cantaloupe may be cut either way—there is no rule. Very small ones are often cut crosswise, and very big ones may be cut into quarters, lengthwise.

Whether you are a teenager or a parent with young people in the family, you will find the suggestions in my booklet, "Etiquette Tips for Teenagers" helpful and useful. To get a copy, send thirty-five cents in coins to cover booklet and mailing expenses, to Elizabeth L. Post, in care of this newspaper.

RUTH AND JAIME LAREDO

Maverick Concert Slated

Ruth and Jaime Laredo, pianist and violinist, respectively, two of the up and coming generation of young virtuoso musicians, will perform Sunday, July 30 at 3 p.m. on the stage of Maverick Hall in Woodstock. They will play works by Brahms, Ravel, Schumann and Cesar Franck.

According to the Laredos, classical music is well and alive. They see a continuing trend in young dedicated musicians in their 20's becoming known among the great and famous.

Ruth Laredo was born in Detroit. Her career as a pianist is as full and as varied as her talent. She has performed as recitalist, soloist with the Detroit Symphony, the American Symphony under Stokowski, the Philadelphia Orchestra, as well as in due recitals with her husband and as chamber instrumentalist. The pianist recently toured the U.S. and Europe with Music From Marlboro, and took part in the Lincoln Center Mozart Festival.

Bolivian born Jaime Laredo at 19 won the coveted Queen Elisabeth of Belgium Competition, and since then he has distinguished himself as a first rank virtuoso. Now 31, the violinist has appeared with all the great American orchestras including those of Boston, Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Philadelphia, and has concertized widely in Europe, Canada and South America. He has appeared also with Music From Marlboro in Chamber Music Programs.

In 1969, Laredo celebrated the 10th anniversary of his

New York debut with a concert at Tully Hall at Lincoln Center to unanimous critical acclaim. Mr. Laredo is the owner of a Stradivarius dated 1717, acquired at the cost of $65,000. "It costs more than buying a house," he declared Mrs. Laredo. It is possible that in time, due to fast-rising prices of musical instruments, that only collectors will be able to buy them and not the musicians.

In concert, the Laredos give perfectly balanced performances. They play with great fire, but without exaggeration. "They keep the sound light, the temperature high, and the mood warm," so proclaimed critic, Irving Kolodin in the Saturday Review. The New York Times critic wrote: "It was utter joy. Mrs. Laredo's tone was crystal clear. Mr. Laredo showed an uncanny ability to make the tiniest tremolo count. It was a prime, evening of chamber music."

The Laredos travel a great deal, sometimes in duo concerts, other times as solists. They make their home in New York City. They have a two and one-half year old daughter who is already musically inclined, practicing on her violin with her father. Mrs. Laredo records for Connoisseur Record Society, Mr. Laredo for Columbia and RCA.

Inquires concerning the concert have already been received from as far as New York City. A large attendance is anticipated. For further information, contact Basil Eliescu at Woodstock.

Hints from Heloise

By HELOISE CRUISE

Dear Heloise:

Yippee — it's picnic time again!

Last summer I bought a large plastic wastebasket (a clothes basket might work better for some). I stocked it with paper plates and hot holders, paper cups and hot cups, napkins, paper towels, heavy-duty plastic utensils, a sharp knife, a can opener and a pretty terrycloth tablecloth. Added to this are paper sacks and bread wrappers.

When the family gets the notion they want to go on a picnic, the "Picnic basket" is all ready for us. Just add the food and away we go!

At cleanup time — the paper bags are there for easy disposal. The bread wrapper is loaded with the used utensils. They are washed and dried when we get back home, and then put back in the basket.

I make certain the basket never runs out of its basic supplies. We can all enjoy our picnic because nothing has been forgotten and left at home.

Dree Miller

DEAR HELOISE:

For those of your readers who dislike washing out their mop, perhaps they can do what I do with mine.

When I put clothes into my washing machine, I put my mop in the big sink alongside the machine. Then when the soapy water spins out, my mop has the advantage of all that soap (and sometimes bleach). Then I dunk it up and down a few times, rinse a little, and my mop is nice and fresh!

Dorothea Black

Letter of Thought

Dear Heloise:

You asked for comments about receiving gifts. When my grandmother was giving me advice before I was married, she said:

Remember these three things and they will help you all through your life. . .

You are like butter and can only be spread so thin, so don't take on more than you can do justice to.

Learn to firmly, but kindly, say no. To be definite, when that answer is required, is better for everyone concerned.

Be gracious about receiving as well as giving a gift. To give a gift gives a person a warm feeling. The way you accept a gift helps the giver retain this feeling. It is rude to say, "You shouldn't have done it." That takes away the joy of the giving.

Nancy Thorton

Dear Heloise:

When we moved and I was packing all the packaged foods and canned goods, I realized that some of it had been in the cupboard for many months.

As I unpacked the moving cartons, I took a felt marker pen and marked each item with the big "X." In my new home, I am being sure to use up all the older items first.

I further plan to mark all the items about once a year to prevent any accumulation of any older canned foods.

Isabel Stevens

No fooling, gals, she is as right as rain. When you buy those canned goods in quantities when they are on sale, be sure and store them in back of the older items.

All food and health authorities tell you that no canned goods should be kept over a year, and better yet, not even that long.

Workers Seal Mine, Nine Lives

BLACKSVILLE, W. Va. (AP) — Massive slabs of steel-reinforced concrete have sealed the Blacksville No. 1 mine and the fate of nine miners who were trapped inside on Saturday night.

Workers raced through the night to complete the seal against the possibility of further explosions deep inside the burning, gas-filled mine on the border.

Rescue operations for the trapped men ended abruptly Monday after three small explosions sent about 50 rescue workers scurrying for the mine's lone entrance shaft.

Officials of Consolidation Coal Co., owner of the mine, said a hole drilled into the mine 650 feet below the surface was completed and they expected to take measurements of poisonous methane gas inside.

Consolidation spokesmen said three slabs of steel and concrete were used to seal the main shaft, an air shaft and a production shaft of the mine.

John Corcoran, Consolidation president, told newsmen Monday the sealing operation began immediately after a "minor explosion" in an area of the mine where a fire has raged since Saturday night.

A spokesman said later there actually were three quick explosions — two small "pops" and then a larger blast.

Officials had noted increasing levels of methane gas inside the mine Monday afternoon and said they were in the process of deciding whether to remove rescue teams when the explosions occurred.

"Nobody had to tell us to get out," said Harry Myers, rescue shift foreman at the time of the explosions.

Officials said they immediately cleared the area around the mine of all persons, including families of some of the victims who had maintained a nearly two-day vigil.

The sealing operation began immediately, Corcoran said.

He said the result of the explosions "would indicate quite clearly that there is no further opportunity for rescue operations."

Anti-U.S. Campaign Proposed in Middle East

By United Press International

The semiofficial Cairo newspaper Al-Ahram called today for an Arab-wide campaign against American interests in the Middle East.

A "other government-controlled newspaper in Cairo said the United States was as much an enemy of Egypt as Israel. The newspapers were commenting in reaction to a four-hour speech by President Anwar Sadat Monday in which he expressed dismay that U.S. influence in the Arab world was increasing.

Sadat said Arabs possessed of "a pan-Arab strategy to threaten American interests so that the legal rights of the people of the area can be safeguarded and because this will be the reply best understood by America." Political sources said past demands for Al-Ahram urged the drafting

Laird Discusses SALT Talks

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Melvin R. Laird says that if the second round of the SALT talks fails to limit offensive nuclear weapons, the United States should abandon its defensive-missile treaty with the Soviet Union.

"I would believe that would be the only option available," Laird told the Senate Armed Services Committee Monday.

He said he hopes the strategic arms limitation talks are renewed before the end of the year and that they move toward equalizing the number of offensive missiles between the two superpowers.

But if such movement does not come, he said, the United States may have no choice but to abrogate the treaty which limits each nation to two anti-ballistic-missile sites.

Laird offered a number of clarifications of the treaty and its companion, the five-year agreement intended to slow the momentum of the strategic, offensive-arms race while negotiations continued.

In response to specific questions by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and other senators, Laird said he believes the total capacity by more than 30 following situation, if they occurred, would seriously violate the intent of the agreement: —Movement by the Soviets to develop giant missiles and bombs clearly capable of destroying U.S. Minuteman missile sites in underground silos.

—Action by the Soviet Union to move toward deployment in the five-year period of more than the agreed-on 62 "Y" class nuclear, missile-firing submarines.

—The expansion of Soviet missile tubes in both length and width and an expansion of their continental ballistic missiles. On the latter point, Laird said that if the present limitation is observed, the Soviets would not be able to expand missile silos intended for the SS7 missile to contain the larger SS9.

The Defense secretary also said that if the future effective-ness of the Minuteman were at stake, he would not hesitate to class nuclear, missile-firing withdrawal of the unilateral declaration by which the United States gave up the right to deploy mobile, hard-to-hit in-

House Passes Cyclamate Claim Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sid-ing with the administration and against Ralph Nader, the House has narrowly approved a measure allowing the food industry to claim millions of dollars from the government for losses resulting from the cyclamate ban.

The bill was approved Monday and sent to the Senate by a vote of 177-170 after six House members switched their votes from no to yes at the last minute.

Supporters said the legislation will enable justice to be done for those who lost money in 1969 when the government banned cyclamates, the artificial sweeteners once widely used in food and soft drinks. Cyclamates were removed from the government's list of food products "generally recognized as safe" after officials received evidence the sweetener caused cancer in rats.

Consumer advocate Nader, whose forces lobbied against the bill, called the legislation a reward for "bad business judgment and wanton disregard of consumer health." Nothing in the bill, he said, would help "consumers who contract bladder cancer or injuries to unborn generations. It covers only financial losses by the producers."

Under the legislation, the Court of Claims would be empowered to enter judgments for the amount of losses suffered by domestic manufacturers, packers, distributors and farmers because of the ban.

The court would be directed to determine the amount of loss resulting from a "good faith reliance" on the safety of cyclamate because it was on the government's list of generally recognized safe substances. Compensation would cover direct and indirect costs and the figure could exceed $500 million.

Penn Central Fire Destroys 'Comfort' Cars

Backers estimated the cost to the government at up to $120 million, but opponents claimed the figure could exceed $500 million.

Board Considering Dismissal

RHINEBECK
The Rhinebeck Board of Education Monday night considered a petition to retain music teacher Ronald W. Heck after he had been notified of dismissal.

of district residents, parents, and taxpayers.
In asking the board to reconsider Heck's employment the petition mentioned that he "has performed his duty well" and had been an "asset to the educational system."
It also asked that the teacher be apprised of the grounds of his dismissal.
In other business during the short public session the board approved a PTA rendered plan for development of playground areas at Bulkley School, to cost about $3,500 with the PTA contributing $600.

District Principal Ralph Steeves was designated as purchasing agent for the district until a new business manager can take over.
The Rhinebeck Gazette was designated official district newspaper.

Neumaier Accepts Empire College Post

NEW PALTZ
Dr. John J. Neumaier, who leaves his post as president of the State University College at New Paltz Sept. 1, has accepted an appointment as professor at the Empire State College's Manhattan Learning Center.

Dr. Neumaier had announced his resignation from New Paltz in Nov. 1971.

Empire State College is a non-residential liberal arts college affiliated with the State University of New York. Its coordinating center is in Saratoga Springs.

Founded in 1971, the college provides a flexible program, designed to accommodate students of any age, and drawing heavily on educational resources of the larger community.

Dr. Neumaier will be teaching interdisciplinary courses with emphasis on philosophy. His first scheduled course is to be a seminar entitled "Understanding Ourselves Through Inquiry Into the Sociological Imagination of C. Wright Mills."

During Neumaier's four-year term as president, New Paltz has completed the conversion from a small teacher's college to an 8,000 student liberal arts and graduate center. An Experimental Studies Program, an overseas program with 18 centers of learning in other countries, and new educational opportunities for minority youth were also developed during his tenure.

A study of Neumaier's administration was conducted by the Commission on Higher Education of the Middle States Association during its accreditation evaluation in March 1971.

Concerning Dr. Neumaier, the report stated, "The President is energetic, imaginative, and a persuasive leader, who has a clear conception of where the College stands now and where it will need to go in the future, both academically and in terms of its social role. He has won the confidence of the student body, has gained the support of the majority, and has made good headway in improving relationships between the College and the New Paltz community. He was notably successful in bringing the College through the period of national student tensions in the spring of 1970 with minimum of disruption."

Lawrence Quilty, chairman of the New Paltz College Council, expressed pleasure at Dr. Neumaier's Empire State appointment. He said, "John Neumaier for the past four years has led the College through a period of impressive change. The entire Council wishes him success in his teaching endeavors. We know the experience and insights he has gained as President will benefit all those he comes in contact with as a teacher."
Dr. Neumaier and his wife Mrs. Sally Luther, who will continue to teach at the Poughkeepsie Day School, plan to reside in the Poughkeepsie area after he officially leaves the presidency Sept. 1.

Dutchess County DA Explains Conspiracy

POUGHKEEPSIE
Are you guilty of conspiracy if you plot a crime with another person? No, says Dutchess County District Attorney Albert Rosenblatt.

Stating that this crime frequently appears in news items pertaining to federal cases he asserts that it also has application under state law. "Some people believe, erroneously, that an individual is guilty of conspiracy when he simply agrees with another person to commit a crime," he said.

This is the necessary precursor, but more is required. In order that an individual be liable it is necessary that the overseas program with 18 centers of learning in other countries, and new educational

Rosenblatt gives the following illustration: "Sam Sneak and Billy Bold decide one evening that they are going to perform a robbery by holding up a bank teller... they chart the crime through usage of a telephone book to spot locations and Sam suggests he be the gunman while Billy agrees to remain outside in a getaway car."

They agree the holdup will take place the following week and continue to plan. At this point no crime has been committed. No overt act has materialized.

If Sam and Billy agree to commit the crime and, after procuring a gun, drive toward the bank and, before entering the bank, are apprehended by police, they would be guilty of conspiracy as well as possession of a firearm.

Paltz Hearing Request Denied

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ
The public hearing on the Planned Unit Development proposal, scheduled for Aug. 2 at 8 p.m., will go on as scheduled despite a request for change, according to New Paltz Town Supervisor Anthony J. Moriello.

The request for a change came from Kingston attorney Frederic D. Kaufman in a letter to Moriello dated July 19. Kaufman told The Freeman he is representing people who have an interest in the PUD proposal, on Lehighville hamlet, but said he would withhold their names until he could find out if they wished to be identified.

In his letter, Kaufman requested that the board reconsider the Aug. 2 date for the hearing. His letter said, "It can be stated that many citizens of New Paltz are on vacation presently or will be out of town at the time of the scheduled hearing. The recommendations should have the fullest public disclosure at a time when it cannot be said that exclusionary devices were practiced upon the new Paltz residents. The reason for this request is that optimum community involvement will be wanting at the scheduled hearing."

Kaufman told The Freeman Monday he had been told by his clients that people would be out of town at the hearing time, and he was asked to write a letter to the town requesting the change in hearing date.

He said at least 20 people had "made contributions" toward retaining him.

Moriello said Kaufman "neither deserved nor warranted" any credibility, and his arguments for postponement had "no validity."

Moriello said those who care to come to the hearing "will make it their business to come." He said town government operates "12 months a year." "We don't adjourn town government," said the supervisor.

The town board had met on Kaufman's request, according to Moriello, and had rejected it, with Town Clerk Theodore Lasher directed to write a letter to Kaufman to that effect. Kaufman had received Lasher's letter when contacted Monday by The Freeman.

Moriello questioned Kaufman's methods. He said Kaufman had sent three letters to the town, and all had been sent to the media before the town received them. "Apparently he intends to present his case through the press instead of in person as an attorney should," Moriello said.

Kaufman said he had not sent copies of his letters to the media. "I'm not handling the publicity on this," he said.

Moriello also wants to know who Kaufman represents. "He's never identified who he represents, if he represents anyone," complained Moriello.

The supervisor said the town board regards Kaufman's letters as "just personal letters from a man who purports to be an attorney."

The PUD proposal is from the Town Planning Board. After the furor over the proposed Lehighville hamlet of New Paltz developer Jack Erman, the town board directed the planning board to reconsider and rewrite the hamlet section of the New Paltz Zoning regulations.

This planning board did, and submitted the PUD proposal to the town board at last month's meeting.

Planning Board Chairman Anthony Costa has assessed the new proposal as being generally more restrictive than the present hamlet section.

Rhinebeck Salary ... 'Not Adequate'

By TIM SCUSTER

RHINEBECK
Terming the present salary schedule "not adequate" for a head of the household living in Dutchess County, a Public Employment Relations Board fact-finder had recommended a 4.7 per cent increase for the coming school year in the Rhinebeck Central School District.

Francis X. Doherty, the PERB fact-finder for the impasse in Rhinebeck, offered his opinions after castigating what he called "deliberate attempts to delay the conclusion of the negotiations process until after the school district's budget was put to bed" on the part of the Board of Education.

Doherty also expressed to each of the parties his "utter dismay at the inordinately large number of issues (21) to be submitted to the fact finding process."

He subsequently reduced that number to 14 after stating, "It was impossible for the fact finder not to seriously question the sincerity of each of the parties and their commitment to arrive at an amicable conclusion in view of this fact."

Concerning salaries, the report said that district submitted a single, firm, economic offer with the expressed attitude of non-negotiability, admittedly recognizing their alternatives, but summarily rejecting the same.

"The Association," he continued, "while attempting to convey a reasonable posture, revealed an unrealistic proposal."

He noted that Rhinebeck has consistently maintained a very reasonable tax rate in relation to a comparison with school districts throughout the state, and an exceptionally low tax rate in comparison with school districts within the county of Dutchess.

Doherty suggested that the current salary schedule structure be retained with the parties to mutually agree to an across the board adjustment of 3.2 per cent plus a 1.5 per cent "catch up factor."

Concerning some fringe benefits the fact finder said of health insurance, "The fact of this issue is simply that it is a costly fringe benefit which Rhinebeck has not seen fit to extend as generously to its employees as the majority of political subdivisions have throughout the state."

And he recommended that the parties mutually agree to an increase in the participation cost ratio from 75-50 to 85-15.

The matter of tenure brought forth a recommendation that neither the board proposal of a mandatory five-year tenure nor the association proposal of permissive interpretation be incorporated into the contract.

Doherty also recommended an increase of the number of annual sick day credits from ten to twelve days. He said this would have an "imperceptible effect" upon the budget and would improve the relative position of the association within Dutchess County, but "would not provide anything even approaching parity."

It was recommended that the current sabbatical leave clause be retained but both parties give consideration to the summer sabbatical concept.

And Doherty commented, "It is strongly recommended that the fact finding step of the current grievance procedure be eliminated and that the final stage be that of arbitration."

LOSE 20 POUNDS IN TWO WEEKS!

Famous U.S. Women Ski Team Diet

During the non-snow off season the U.S. Women's Alpine Ski Team members go on the "Ski Team" diet to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. That's right—20 pounds in 14 days! The basis of the diet is chemical food action and was devised by a famous Colorado physician especially for the U.S. Ski Team. Normal energy is maintained (very important!) while reducing. You keep "full"—no starvation—because the diet is designed that way. It's a diet that is easy to follow whether you work, travel or stay at home.

This is honestly a fantastically successful diet. If it weren't, the U.S. Women's Ski Team wouldn't be permitted to use it! Right? So, give yourself the same break the U.S. Ski Team gets. Lose weight the scientific, proven way. Even if you've tried all the other diets, you owe it to yourself to try the U.S. Women's Ski Team Diet. That is, if you really do want to lose 20 pounds in two weeks. Order today. Tear this out as a reminder.

Send only $2.00 ($2.25 for Rush Service)—Cash is O.K.—to: Ski Team Diet, P.O. Box 15493, San Diego, California 92115. Don't order unless you expect to lose 20 pounds in two weeks! Because that's what the Ski Team Diet will do!

WHAT DID HE LOSE?

A youth was stopped for a traffic violation. The public safety official recognized the odor in the violator's car and it was found that he had a few "joints" with him. He was convicted of marijuana possession, an automatic felony, and received a suspended sentence.

All he lost was his right to vote, to own a gun and the right to run for public office.

He also lost the opportunity of ever being a licensed doctor, dentist, certified public accountant, engineer, lawyer, architect, realtor, schoolteacher, barber, funeral director, masseur or stockbroker.

He can never get a job where he has to be bonded or licensed.

He can't work for the city, county or federal governments.

He cannot be admitted to West Point, Annapolis or the Air Force Academy.

THAT'S WHAT HE LOST!

Reluctant Gibson Faces Palmer in All Star

STARTING PITCHERS: Bob Gibson (R) of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has won 11 straight and Jim Palmer (L) of the Baltimore Orioles were picked Monday as the starting pitchers for the All Star Game tonight in Atlanta, Ga. (UPI Files)

Namath's Ultimatum: No Contract—No Play

By JOE CARNICELLI
UPI Sports Writer

Joe Namath is getting ready to play football again. The only question now is when.

Namath, the New York Jets' celebrated and oft-injured quarterback, reported to the club's training camp at Hofstra University and engaged in his first workouts Monday. But he has yet to sign a contract with the Jets, who paid him over $400,000 as a rookie in 1966, and claims he won't take part in any preseason game until he is signed.

"I'm here because it's my job and I want to prepare for the season, like everyone else," Namath said. "I'm ready to play. I don't want to leave the Jets. But I won't play in any exhibition games until I have a signed contract."

Namath appeared in excellent condition during his two 90-minute workouts and coach Weeb Ewbank was optimistic.

Elsewhere in the pro football camps, the New England Patriots traded Jim Nance, the bulwark of their running game in the mid-60s, to the Philadelphia Eagles for a high draft choice next season. Nance had asked to be traded because he felt he was not being used enough.

Bill Thomas, Dallas' No. 1 draft choice from Boston College, will be out for three weeks with a shoulder injury. X-rays revealed that a staple pin in the running back's shoulder from previous surgery two seasons ago had worked loose.

Quarterback Roman Gabriel, who suffered a collapsed lung last week, was back in the Los Angeles Rams' training camp

Monday, about two weeks ahead of schedule. Gabriel did some running and light throwing.

Defensive tackle Mike Tilleman of the Houston Oilers will undergo exploratory surgery for a growth in his abdomen. Tilleman had a malignant growth removed from his abdomen two years ago and an abnormality showed up during routine X-rays Monday.

New York Giants coach Alex Webster said that Randy Johnson, currently battling Norm Snead for the starting quarterback job, will open against the Kansas City Chiefs in their preseason game Saturday at Canton, Ohio.

Chuck Hixson, a former passing star at Southern Methodist, retired from football Monday after being traded from Kansas City to Buffalo.

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Gibson reluctantly throws the first pitch tonight in the 43rd All-Star baseball game, claiming all the while: "I didn't want to start."

The St. Louis Cardinal right-hander, less than overjoyed about his assignment for the National League, faces Jim Palmer of the American League at Atlanta Stadium.

"If I had my druthers, I wouldn't start this All-Star Game," said Gibson, the hottest pitcher in baseball with 11 straight victories. "I'd much rather just pitch one inning—and leave. An All-Star assignment might be an honor, but it's hard work, too."

Gibson matches serves with Palmer, the right-handed Baltimore Oriole ace, before a full house of 52,744 while about 50 million more are expected to watch on national television. The game starts at 8:30 p.m., EDT.

Gibson, historically a fierce competitor, created controversy with his position on the All-Star Game.

"Yes, I said that I didn't want to start but I didn't say that I didn't want to pitch—the writers said that," Gibson remarked Monday at a press conference, referring to a recent newspaper story.

The hard-throwing hurler said that he preferred to work just one inning in relief so that it wouldn't interfere with his normal rotation during the regular season. It's usually the practice for an All-Star starter to complete three innings.

While the talkative Gibson spoke his mind, Palmer remained a silent starter on the eve of the midsummer classic. Palmer was absent from the press conference, but Earl Weaver, his manager at Baltimore and the boss of the American League team, had enough to say for both.

"This game is important to me and to every player in it," said Weaver, responding to Gibson's posture. "I don't think anybody should say he doesn't want to play. Ninety-five percent of the gate from this game goes into the pension fund. This pays for my retirement and his (Gibson's) and he'd better not forget it."

Weaver, producing newspaper clippings quoting Gibson's outspoken comments, added: "It's something that shouldn't have been said. I'm sure he's happy to be here and he'll go out and do a job, especially after me popping off."

National League Manager Danny Murtaugh seemed unrattled by the Gibson storm. "I haven't seen any article," said the former Pittsburgh manager. "What did he say?"

When Weaver produced the clippings, Murtaugh glanced at them and said: "Well, Bob and I have different ideas. I named him as my starter . . . and I'm going to start him."

Murtaugh refused to commit himself past the first three innings, although he has a quantity of powerful pitching arms to choose from, including New York's Tom Seaver, Steve Blass of the Pittsburgh Pirates, the Philadelphia Phillies' Steve Carlton and Don Sutton of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

But with all that reserve pitching help, the National League is a 7-5 favorite based heavily on slugging stars—including Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench, the major league's home run and RBI leader with 24 and 72.

Also helping to load the odds against the American League and boost the Nationals' series edge of 23 victories, 18 losses and one tie, is a power-stacked lineup that can easily reach the fences at Atlanta Stadium, a hitter's paradise called "The Launching Pad."

Included among them is the ever-present Hank Aaron, playing in his 21st All-Star Game. The Atlanta Braves' slugger, who has hit many of his career 659 home runs here, expects there will be more than one ball leaving the cozy park Tuesday night.

Aaron, despite a history of poor All-Star performances, will be hitting No. 3 in the National League lineup. Joe Morgan, Cincinnati's second baseman, is the Nationals' leadoff man, followed by Pittsburgh center fielder Roberto Clemente.

Willie Stargell, Pittsburgh's left fielder, will hit in the clean-up spot, followed by Bench. Houston first baseman Lee May will bat sixth, third baseman Joe Torre of St. Louis, seventh, and Chicago shortstop Don Kessinger is Murtaugh's No. 8 hitter while Gibson, one of the best-hitting pitchers in the game, will bat ninth.

Weaver, hoping to duplicate last year's 6-4 American League triumph at Detroit, insists he's going all-out to win this one.

"I'll use my players as I think they'll help me to win the game . . . and I hope that I use them at the right time," said Weaver.

Weaver said that he plans to use 17-game-winner Mickey Lolich of Detroit and Cleveland's Gaylord Perry right behind Palmer "depending on Murtaugh's strategy."

Rod Carew, Minnesota's fine second baseman, is Weaver's leadoff batter. New York Yankee center fielder Bobby Murphy is the No. 2 hitter in the Americans' lineup, followed by 3-4-5 batters right fielder Reggie Jackson of Oakland; Chicago first baseman Dick Allen; and left fielder Carl Yastrzemski of Boston. Shortstop Bobby Grich of Baltimore; Orioles' third baseman Brooks Robinson; catcher Bill Freehan of Detroit and Palmer round out the Americans' lineup.

Lockman Succeeds The Lip

Leo Durocher Resigns

ATLANTA (AP) — Leo Durocher, who took over the down-trodden Chicago Cubs in 1966 and made them pennant contenders a year later, has "stepped aside" as manager.

Vice President John Holland used that phrase in making the announcement early today, leaving it unclear whether The Lip had quit or been fired.

In any case, Whitey Lockman, director of player development, is the man picked by owner Phil Wrigley to revive the Cubs. They are currently languishing in fourth place in the National League East, 10 games out of first.

The Chicago Sun-Times reported today that Wrigley had summoned Durocher to his apartment Monday night for a top-secret meeting, the second such summit conference in nine months.

Lockman, former New York Giants first baseman under Durocher, denied that the Cubs are suffering from morale problems.

"Of course, I haven't been too close to the team in my position this year," he added in an interview today, his 46th birthday.

LEO DUROCHER

He said he was hard put to diagnose the team's ineffectiveness.

"You have to remember that Pittsburgh and St. Louis have been playing exceptionally well," he said.

Lockman, Holland and other

Cubs staff were in Atlanta for tonight's All-Star game, in which Cub shortstop Don Kessinger is starting for the National League.

Durocher had dropped from sight and was unavailable for comment.

No big player changes are anticipated, said Lockman, and managing policies are not expected to be drastically revamped.

Lockman spent 15 years as a player in the majors, coming up in 1945 and retiring after the 1959 season with Baltimore and Cincinnati. He played under Durocher when he managed New York for 7½ years in the late 40s and early 50s.

Lockman's first assignment after joining the Cubs' organization in 1964 was to manage Dallas-Fort Worth in the Texas League. He guided the team to a first-place tie and was named Manager of the Year in the league.

From 1967 to 1970 Lockman managed the Tacoma Cubs of the Pacific Coast League. The Cubs won the PCL championship in 1969 and he picked up his second Manager of the Year

In 1970 he was appointed supervisor of player development — a minor league job — and two years later he was appointed assistant to the vice president.

Lockman claimed to have no knowledge of players' discontent with Durocher's managing, although such strife was apparent last year.

However, Holland quoted Wrigley as saying, "If there has been any friction between Leo and the players this year, then Leo's decision will allow the players in the remainder of the season to find out for themselves if they are pennant contenders."

A perennial second-division club until Durocher's arrival, the Cubs caught fire a year later and finished no lower than third in the next five years.

Since he began managing in Brooklyn 33 years ago, Durocher has directed his teams to 1,875 wins, a high among active managers.

Holland said Durocher would work with the team "on a consulting basis in the coming months to help analyze our situation and help in future planning."

KINGSTON Except for Duane Carey, Mike Droulette didn't have much trouble with Sickler's-Kingston Trust. Droulette spaced four hits, three by Carey, over the distance, and J & G Dry Wall-Charlie's Car Wash picked up a 2-1 Senior Babe Ruth League victory at Dietz Stadium Monday.

In another BRL contest, Rock Construction made it five straight with a 5-2 win over the American Legion.

Typecast Right Font

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) —Durable Typecast stamped herself as one of the nation's greatest distance-running mares Monday when she raced to a head victory in the $135,850 Sunset Handicap, closing feature of the Hollywood Park meeting.

The victory was the second major win on the turf for the 6-year-old mare and she was the first feminine competitor to capture the two-mile Sunset Handicap in 31 runnings.

Not so successful in competing against fillies and mares, Typecast proved her mastery over male horses on the grass. She previously had won the $100,000 Invitational Turf Handicap at 1 1/2 miles, defeating Violonor and Cougar II.

In the Sunset, defending champion Over The Counter made his customary belated rush that fell a head short. Last year the 8-year-old beat Cougar II in the Sunset.

It was the fourth stakes win of the meeting for Typecast to give her $234,400 for the Hollywood Park season, $285,700 for the year and a lifetime earnings of $454,800. She was named Horse of the Meeting.

John Sellers, brought in from Chicago to ride Typecast after John Lambert was sidelined with a shoulder injury, kept the mare close to the leaders. He brought her through on the inside in the stretch and then outgamed Over The Counter in a desperate burst of speed. The winning time was 3:20 3/5. Violonor was third, Riboronde fourth and Germany's Wustentech fifth.

Despite the presence at the meeting of such outstanding horses as Riva Ridge, Cougar II, Typecast, Triple Band and others of national stature, the track showed a decrease of 5.6 per cent in wagering. The daily average parimutuel handle was $2,846,584. Attendance was off 8.27 per cent with a daily average of 26,544. Total attendance for the meeting was 1,990,826 and the total handle $213,493,840.

Droulette locked up with Dave Decker in a pitcher's duel with Decker surrendering an RBI single to Jay Snyder in the third. Sickler's came right back with the equalizer when Bill Samuels, the only other Sickler's batter to hit safely, doubled in Carey with the second hit in the inning.

Kevin Jones recorded the second and last hit off Decker in the home fifth, but it knocked in John Stote with the winning run.

Droulette fanned nine to Decker's eight as both hurlers went the route. Carey slammed three hits in the contest in three trips, one a triple.

In the Rock-Legion battle, both teams got only three hits apiece, but the winners took advantage of 10 free passes by Warren Cagnone and three Legion errors to push three runs across in the fifth.

Bob Beckers fanned seven and picked up the victory as a rally by the Legion fell short in the sixth.

Bob Sperle Cracks 100 Straight Hits

ST. REMY Bob Sperle did some fancy shooting at Sunday's Ulster County Circuit Shoot at the Lake Katrine Rod and Gun Club. Sperle had a perfect day reeling off 100 straight in the Seniors competition to post a top 1000 score, then he led the Saugerties Fish and Game Association to the team title with a run of 50.

The Saugerties club fired a 232 total to edge out Wawarsing I by two for first place. Ray Longendyke helped the cause with a 48 in that event and also placed behind Sperle in the individual test with a 980 total.

Other team results were Walker Valley third at 221, Wawarsing II fourth at 218, and the host club fifth at 186.

Ties marked the rest of the standings. Stan Gomes, Bill Kipt and Jim Smith all hit at a .960 clip to share third place in senior shooting. Smith had a run of 75 straight, and Gomes and Kopf each hit 50.

Bill Moore with a run of 25 straight led a trio in the sixth position. Nick Mauro and Ed Hacy deadlocked Moore at 947. Fred Ferber also knocked off 25 straight to tie Bob Schmedake and Duane Van Arkle for the ninth position at 940.

Faerber came back strongly in the handicap event to win a share of first. Faerber, Gomes and Smith scored 960 to split the top spot ahead of Ray Markle at 860 and Tom Grossi at 840.

Supporting Sperle and Longendyke in the winning team effort was Van Arkle with 47, Jim Graham with 47 and Frank Lauffer with 40.

Lake Katrine's fifth place came on a short-handed effort as the host club could only field a four man team.

Nest meet on the agenda for the circuit shooters comes August 6 at the Walder Valley range.

Esopus and Saugerties Win District LL Titles

Bob Schlanger's second shutout of the District 16 Little League playoff powered the Esopus stars past Highland Monday by a 4-0 margin, as Esopus took home their fourth district championship in the past six years.

Esopus will face Saugerties, the District 15 champ, Wednesday night. Saugerties wrapped up their district earlier with big wins over Windham and Ockawamick. Home team Highland couldn't figure out Schlanger's serves and managed only two hits, both singles, off the Esopus ace. An errorless defensive game by the winners sealed up the victory, and protected a three-run burst in the visitor's first.

put one on and one out before Schlanger ripped a double. A wild pitch by loser Paul DiLorenzo drove in Jay Foust, then Russ Shultis slammed a two-run homer. That was all the winners were to need. Schlanger didn't even allow a threat to mount, and his mates added another in the third. Foust scampered home a second time on another errand pitcher's heave, this one by reliever Bob Bell. With the bases loaded later in the inning, Shultis boomed another drive deep to left, but outfielder Gene Ruiz made the catch with his back to the fence and doubled Dan Langton at the plate with a great throw. Schlanger fanned ten Highlanders over the distance while walking only three, and Rich Barton added a pair of hits to gain the victory. Hackett, George Beisel, Kevin Curl, Kit Swech and Jim Nolan each had two hits for Saugerties in that one. The championship game was a little harder to nail down. Saugerties scored nine runs in the second inning to take a comfortable lead, or so it seemed until Ockawamick came back with five in the third.

Starting pitcher Becker was yanked in the fifth, but reliever Harry Richter managed to keep the losers at bay the rest of the way for an 11-9 win. Becker hit his second homer of the tourney in the finale. Wednesday's inter-district battle at Esopus is shaping up as a classic hitting vs. pitching duel. Schlanger's two tourney victories were both shutouts.

and he has surrendered only three hits and three walks in 12 innings. He'll try to stop a Sawyer lineup that has run up 29 runs in two games. Highland (4) Esopus (4)

Impellitiere's 67 Captures Woodstock Open

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

WOODSTOCK A 20-year Newburgh collegian who contemplated early retirement from golf after failing to make the cut in the New York State Amateur Championship last week came back to win the prestigious 37th annual Woodstock Open with a 3-under-par 67 Monday.

Jerry Impellitiere, a St. Patrick's (Newburgh) graduate who attends Ohio University, fired nines of 33 and 34 to edge two other amateurs by one shot—Bill Odeneal, the New Paltz veteran who carded 37-31, and defending champion Johnny Parsons of Newton, Conn., who posted 35-33. Parsons blew himself out of a chance to tie with a bogey-4 on the 18th hole.

Another stroke off the pace was Ulster Champion, Harvey Bostic of Wiltwyck Country Club, who closed with 33 for a 69.

Low pro in the 90-player field was Johnny Taylor, assistant pro at Albany Country Club with a 35-34-69 which earned him first prize of $400. Ed Gray of Tarry Brae in Sullivan earned the runnerup spot among the pros with his 34-36-70 good for $300. Impellitiere was rewarded with $200 in merchandise, the maximum permitted an amateur under United States Golf Association rules.

"Winning a big tournament like this is a great lift for me," said the modest Impellitiere. "After I double-bogeyed the 18th hole at Dutchess last week to miss the cut by a shot, I really felt like packing it in."

"Then I gave myself a good talking to and decided to concentrate on the mental aspect of the game," Jerry explained. "I think the mental conditioning was good for me and I feel I'm back at the top of my game."

Impellitiere's mental conditioning program paid off handsomely, as he solved Woodstock's finely groomed links for six birdies in almost perfect golf weather.

"I used just about every shot in the bag," he reflected. "The greens putted well but weren't as fast as they seemed," an observation repeated several times by others in the field.

The 5-11, 180 pound Impellitiere carded three birdies on each side, the longest from 20 feet on the tough par-4 second hole and 15-footer on the 17th which eventually gave him his winning margin over Odeneal and Parsons.

At the par-5 fifth, Impellitiere was home in two but missed a shot at an eagle from 15 feet. On the sixth, his tee shot hit the tree line on the right. He then punched a low liner to the green and dropped a 15-footer for a birdie-3. This had to be one of his key shots of the day. The victory was the second major win for the Osiris Country Club member, who won the Orange County Tournament of Champions in 1971.

Odeneal, missing a tie for first place for the second time in three years, needed only 19 strokes on the last six holes with a 3-3-3-3-1 finish and birdies on 13, 14, 16 and 17. "I just ran out of holes," philosophized the old pro.

Parsons was out in 35 with three birdies to offset three bogeys. He came back in 33 with an eagle-3 on the 5th and birdie on the 8th. His tee shot hit the trap to the left of the 18th green and left him a difficult lie and he needed a bogey-4 to get in. It was fatal.

Is Open Forevermore Domain of Amateurs?

WOODSTOCK once master of all the North division. A 5-handicap player, he was off his usual form and posted an 85 in the company of pro Jerry Pedulla of Margaretville, a long time friend, and Charlie Stauffer of Wiltwyck. He promised to return to the Woodstock course to "do a little better."

Some funny things happened on the way to the 18th hole. Lonesome George Cosenza of Wiltwyck picked up a horrendous "10" on the par-3 fourth hole. Stew Smith, the Sawyerkill Country club pro, 6-putted (correct) the third hole. That's going to take some explaining.

Harvey Bostic came to the 17th hole realizing he needed an eagle-2 to win. He birdied the 14th and went on to match Odeneal's 3-3-3 finish. "I went for broke on 17," Harvey explained. He did. He drove the green on the 275 yard elevated hole but missed his eagle bid from 20 feet.

The U.S. Ambassador to Luxemburg, the Hon. Kingston Gould competed in the amateur

Bob Hope at Mighty M

MONTICELLO — Bob Hope is coming to Monticello. Leon Greenberg, President and General Manager of Monticello Raceway, has announced that the comedian would make his Catskill debut on Sunday evening, August 6th at the Sullivan County harness track for the benefit of Monticello's Community General Hospital. Hope's August 6th concert is the result of a lot of luck and some quick maneuvering by Greenberg and Frank Parsons, Monticello's representative from The Willard Alexander Artists Management Agency.

Last Saturday, Hope hosted a nationally broadcast telethon direct from Baltimore to raise one million dollars for victims of Hurricane Agnes. One of the first acts Hope requested while putting together the show was jazz great Woody Herman and His Swinging Herd. Herman in concert all week long at the raceway, readily agreed but needed immediate transportation from Sullivan County to Maryland.

Enter Greenberg. First the raceway executive allowed the band to begin its Saturday evening concert at 7:00 in order to be finished by 8. Then he arranged for an Eastern Airlines charter to pick up Herman and his 18 musicians at Sullivan County International Airport to be flown direct to Baltimore. In return for the favor, Hope invited Greenberg to come along and appear on the program and promised to perform in concert at Monticello Raceway on Saturday, August 6th.

"Having Bob Hope entertain at Monticello Raceway is a great boon to Sullivan County and a course, the track's favorite charity, Monticello's Community General Hospital," Greenberg said. "It's a wonderful opportunity to raise needed funds for the hospital and this could turn out to be the greatest entertainment happening to ever take place in The Catskills."

An official announcement on ticket prices and locations will be made shortly.

Kramer Cops Legion Pin Title

SAUGERTIES 36th place, and Kingston Post 150 No. 4 finished 38th, 2968 for $20 also.

In the doubles Joe Heidcamp and Earl Martin of Saugerties finished 16th with 1277 for $50. Don Baines and Dutch Hoffman of New Paltz finished 32nd with 1248 for $30. Another New Paltz duo, Bruce Sutherland and Ralph Clearwater, were 53rd at 1225 for $15, and Don Misner and Mike Bordick, a couple of recruiters in Kingston for the Marine Corps and Air Force respectively, finished 60th with 1221 for $15.

He is the first Ulster County bowler ever to win a championship in the 23-year-old state legion tournament.

Following an ABC approved extension in the pay-off of prize money, it was learned at the American Legion convention in Syracuse that Kramer was the winner in the nine-game all-events pool with a gross score of 1983 good for $100 and the championship trophy.

Kramer rolled scratch scores of 583 in the team event, 565 in the doubles and 592 in the singles for a nine game total of 1740 with combined handicap of 243. His singles gross of 663 was worth $25 while Lamouree-Hackett No. 1 team with a 19th place 3011 was good for another $16 per man. Kramer's combined tournament winnings totaled $141.

Other area money winners in the tournament included team event winners Kingston Post 150 team No. 5. Their 31st place 2884 was good for $27.50. Town of Marbletown won $20 with 2974 with his five-hitter against the Anchorage bats. He gave up triples to Bob Marlow and Cliff Hotaling, but rode Bruck's blow to victory. Bob Otto slammed three hits and doubled for the winners.

Stan Tentnowski clubbed a grand slam in the first inning, but it took a two-out single by Tony Turk in the bottom of the eighth to win it for the Eagles. Tom Mooney slammed three hits for the winners, and Frank Dellacato paced The Place with three.

A seven-run third inning highlighted Boiceville's triumph with Jow Ahouse hitting the circuit. John Waters tripled, and John Parete and Bruce Weidy doubled to up the Singles money winners in the all-events, and Spaulding, Hoffman, Bordick and Sam Turk collected $5 apiece. Jim Hannon of Sullivan-Shafer Post 176 in New Paltz was the only net division winner in the tournament with a fifth place 1775 for $15.

Heidcamp picked up $15 in the all-events, and Spaulding, Hoffman, Bordick and Sam Turk collected $5 apiece. Jim Hannon of Sullivan-Shafer Post 176 in New Paltz was the only net division winner in the tournament with a fifth place 1775 for $15.

Bruck Dials Right Digit

KINGSTON — For a while it looked like Jim Hotaling was going to turn in one of the sterling pitching performances of the Slow Pitch season. The Anchorage II hurler was working with a slim 2-1 lead two outs into the sixth, and it looked like a four hitter in the making. That is until Tom Bruck unloaded a homer with Ernie Madison aboard to pull the Telephone Boozers to a 3-2 victory.

margin. Jungle sluggers were as Tom Regan picked up the hit, and Dan Hobart with a double.

Mid City just never had it against McCards. While Don Boyce flipped a three-hitter at the keggers, John Finch homered to lead a 17-hit barrage. The Letus boys, Steve, Pete and Harry, each smacked a double, and Bill Cuff banged three hits to power the win.

Holsapples lasted four innings against the Pheasant Inn onslaught. Six runs in the third, four each in the second and fourth and one in the first brought the 13-run rule into effect. Doubles came from Rich Cyr, Jim Holmes, Russ Glass, Tom Tucker, Jim Carr and Ted Weber. Cyr had three safeties

Show Beat

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — Before it's all over, "The Godfather" will probably be seen by more people than any previous movie (save, perhaps, "Gone With the Wind") and make several people very rich. It may make a few actors into stars and possibly earn some of them Oscars.

But what will it do to society? This is an important question, because at the moment Paramount is putting together a sequel. They're now calling it, for reasons of convenience, "Godfather II." And the combined impact of two films which preach that a particular group is superior to the law could be profound.

The basic problem is that there are those who feel the film is a force for good. They point to it being a "family" picture and they are not being facetious.

"It's about a family," says Richard S. Castellano, one of the film stars, "and a very loyal family. I think there should be more loyalty in families."

Of course, you can show loyal families who engage in other trades besides crime. "Sometimes a Great Notion," for example, showed a loyal family in the lumbering business but it didn't have the power at the box office of "The Godfather."

Castellano also believes that "The Godfather" expresses a choice between organized and disorganized crime and implicitly indicates that the one is better than the other.

"There has always been crime," he says, "as far back as Biblical times. And there always will be crime. Which would you rather have, organized crime or disorganized crime?"

"If crime is organized, then it's safe to walk on the street. If you put a bet down, you know you'll collect if you win. If crime is disorganized, the streets aren't safe and you never know if your winning bet will be paid."

Grey Frederickson, associate producer of "The Godfather," agrees in essence. He says that organized crime is the lesser of the two evils, that crime is inherent in human nature and "some kind of controlling establishment might be a good thing."

"Some critics have written," he says, "that our picture glamorizes or condones crime and violence. I hope it doesn't. It's the story of a family with strong bonds and much love, who just happen to be in the business of crime."

"That is probably not a very moral business, but they deal in things — drugs gambling, prostitution — that they feel the people want. It's not right, but it exists."

Frederickson thinks organized crime has the indirect effect of increasing crime on the streets, because it makes it easier to get drugs, and drug addicts are a huge source of street crime.

Tom Reddin, a former Los Angeles police chief who is now a TV and radio news commentator, expresses the views of law enforcement officials.

"Professionals in the business of law enforcement," he says, "work on the premise of which kind of crime is less bad. Not which is better. I don't think organized crime is better."

"Organized crime is more detrimental to society, because of the amount of money which it peels out of the economy. The economic loss to organized crime is absolutely astronomical. It would be even higher if it were to be encouraged by movies or any other instrument."

"And another thing. Organized crime operates in an aura of governmental corruption, which makes it worse."

Nevertheless, there are many who feel, as Castellano does, that they'd rather have their crime in neatly packaged, well-organized doses, such as "The Godfather" portrays.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

EMERGENCY: (Q.) Last year my boyfriend and I wanted to get married but my mother said no. This year we wanted to, but my mother still said no. Now I am pregnant and my boyfriend says we must be married and keep the baby.

Do you know where we could go to get married without our parents' permission? I am 19. He is nearly 18.—In Trouble in Texas

(A.) Your state and most of the others permit girls of 19 to marry without parental consent. But I know of none in which it is legal for a boy of 17 to marry without such approval. Even if I did, I would urge you two to talk with both sets of your parents and to seek both their advice and their consent.

Ordinarily, I think a boy of 17 is too young for marriage, but your case may be an exception, considering that both of you seem to be serious about marriage and the baby.

In view of your pregnancy, your mother will probably say yes now. Talk to her and your father immediately. Ask for their love and their help and their blessing.

UNASKED: (Q.) I like Mark but he keeps treating me like just a friend. When I see him I always smile and say "hi." Sometimes he says "hi," sometimes he doesn't.

One day he was really friendly and I thought he was about to ask for a date. But one of his friends interrupted us and Mark walked away. I didn't see him again for a week.

How can I get him away from his friends long enough for him to ask me for a date?—Marcia in Maryland

(A.) Mark sounds to me as if he is not ready for more than a "good friend" relationship with you. If he were ready to ask you for a date he would manage to find a time and place.

I suggest you continue your warm and friendly, but not forward approach to him. He may warm up to you, but don't count on it.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions and comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Report From Character Actor

Editor's Note: During Cynthia Lowry's vacation, the column is being written by invited guests, each of whom was asked to respond to specific question his work in some area of television. Here is the report of the 68-year-old character actor who for the past 17 years has been playing the role of Doc Adams in CBS' "Gunsmoke."

Q. How do you keep your enthusiasm high after playing the same role for so many years?

A. Well, you know, I can truthfully say I've never thought of it that way. When I came back to the show last year after being out for several weeks recovering from open-heart surgery to repair a heart condition, the "Gunsmoke" company threw a little party for me. I told my friends then, "I'm glad to be here tonight; in fact, I'm glad to be anywhere tonight." I still feel that way. I'm just damn glad to be alive, well and doing something I enjoy doing. Doc Adams has been good to me.

Q. Has Doc changed over the years? Is it the same man in the same clothes only a more mature figure?

A. When you've been playing the same character for a long time, you have to expect a certain amount of change and development. I think all actors keep trying new and different things, especially when you live with the character every day. Actors—and directors—keep looking for things that add to the dimension of the character.

Q. Before "Gunsmoke" you had a very active career in motion pictures, and some of them pop up on television. What do you think about movies made 18 or more years ago compared with the movies of today?

A. I haven't been to a movie in over 10 years, so that should tell you what I think of movies being made today. I think, by and large, they are indecent and they seem to try to go as far as they can in shocking you in new ways.

I also think that sooner or later movies will have to turn the corner again, become more suitable to public taste. The picture business has been in a slump and I think the reason is that not many people want to go out to see a dirty movie. The pictures I made in my pre-"Gunsmoke" days may not have been any great works of art, but they were clean and decent entertainment. The man who put me into the theater would not allow us to say so much as "hell" or "damn" lest one person in the audience be offended. I've always tried to be associated in my work with actors and actresses who felt the same way.

To my way of thinking, that's what show business is all about.

Nixon, Mc Forces in Sparring Match

By United Press International
While Sen. George S. McGovern and administration leaders sparred from Washington to Alaska, the White House said President Nixon has no intentions of debating the Democratic presidential candidate.

In Custer, S.D., McGovern said Nixon's Vietnam policy of seeking release of U.S. prisoners by bombing North Vietnam was "the height of folly."

In Anchorage, Alaska, Vice President Spiro T. Agnew criticized McGovern's proposals for draft dodger amnesty and reform of marijuana possession laws.

Republican National Chairman Robert J. Dole said in Washington that McGovern has taken "consistent stands against governments friendly to the United States, and in strong favor of any government antagonistic to the United States."

With the first campaign salvo since Nixon tapped Agnew to complete the GOP ticket still ringing, the White House confirmed Monday that Nixon would not engage in debates.

Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler told a White House news briefing that Nixon's campaign director, Clark MacGregor, was presenting the President's view "in an authoritative way" when he said last week that Nixon would not debate McGovern.

McGovern was working out campaign strategy today at Custer with his running mate, Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri.

In other political developments, the Republican National Platform Committee named 14 persons to head seven subcommittees drafting specific planks for next month's convention and McGovern outlined his campaign team.

Rep. John Rhodes, R-Ariz., said the general headings for the planks will be human concerns; human rights and responsibilities; building a greater prosperity; community and national development; agriculture, national resources and the environment; responsive government; and national security and foreign policy.

McGovern said Gary Hart would be his campaign manager; Frank Mankiewicz, political director; Henry Kimelman, national finance director, and Lawrence F. O'Brien, national campaign chairman.

Dole said he was "puzzled" by McGovern's foreign policy proposals.

"The senator promises to withdraw support from Greece, thereby weakening the U.S. presence in the Mediterranean and jeopardizing the security of Israel, also a consistent McGovern goal," the GOP chairman said. "And he seeks to extend recognition to countries such as Castro's Communist Cuba. This stand is consonant with his strongly sympathetic posture toward the Communist government of Hanoi."

State of Emergency Possible in Britain

LONDON (UPI)—The British government, threatened with its first general strike in almost 50 years, today considered declaring a state of emergency if a series of nationwide strikes spreads.

Workers closed down coal mines, auto factories, trucking firms, newspapers and docks throughout the nation, and union leaders said the chaos will spread.

The crisis resulted from the imprisonment of five longshoremen for contempt of court under a new labor law after they defied a court order to quit picketing and boycotting container depots.

The dockers object to the containers because they are prepacked and loaded onto ships as a single unit, making less work for longshoremen.

As hundreds of thousands of British workers walked out in sympathy with the dockers, government officials said the cabinet might proclaim a state of emergency if the crisis becomes worse or develops into a general strike.

Union leaders left talks with Prime Minister Edward Heath Monday saying no further discussions with the government would be worthwhile until the men were released.

"We told the prime minister it would be fruitless to try to engage in any talks tomorrow (Tuesday) about the economic situation as planned," one union leader said. "This will escalate the longer the men are kept in jail and will be catastrophic to the economy of the country."

Union leaders held a series of meetings today at the local and national level to discuss the prospects for a nationwide demonstration Wednesday. If approved, it would mark the first time since the general strike of 1926 that workers throughout the country have walked off their jobs.

The government meanwhile said it was powerless to do anything about releasing the jailed dockers without superceding judicial authority until they "purged" themselves by apologizing to the court.

Mobile Units Sent Into Ulster

BELFAST (UPI)—The British army has sent armored tank-like vehicles to Ulster in what could be the prelude to a full-scale invasion of the Roman Catholic "no go" areas of Londonderry, political sources said today.

The sources said three of the lumbering vehicles—called tank supporters and unarmed but equipped with bulldozer blades—were secretly unloaded in Belfast this week and shuttled to an unknown site.

The disclosure came as violence flared anew throughout the province. Machinegun fire and bomb blasts killed at least one man and wounded several others during the night.

The dead man, apparently a civilian, was found shot in the head in Belfast by an army patrol, a British military spokesman said. He was the fourth person to die within 24 hours, raising Ulster's death toll to 473 killed in three years of sectarian strife.

Gunmen in a passing car shot and wounded three men in downtown Belfast early today, and another man was shot and wounded by gunmen in a car in Lurgan.

The tank supporters look like tanks without turrets and normally are used to clear minefields, knock down tank obstacles and bridge antitank ditches in advance of an armored assault.

The political sources said their most logical use in Northern Ireland would be to destroy the cement and steel barricades the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA) built to seal off Catholic Bogside and Creggan estates in Londonderry.

British patrols thrust into the Bogside over the weekend for the first time in almost a year.

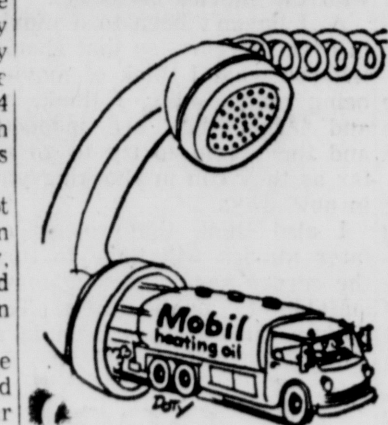

The IRA claimed the moves were reconnaissance operations seeking to pinpoint IRA strong points in anticipation of a major invasion of the area.

William Whitelaw, secretary of state for Ulster, announced the government planned to take a tougher stance with the IRA after a string of bombs killed nine and injured 130 persons in Belfast Friday.

"The IRA has degraded the human race. It must now be clear to all that their sole objective is to promote their aims by violence—and violence alone," he told Parliament Monday.
